RAGING FIRE SWEEPS ACROSS ALASKA TOWN

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A raging fire was reported sweeping unchecked today through the downtown section of the fishing community of Cordova, about 150 miles southwest of here.

Last word before communications were knocked out said at least six buildings had been destroyed.

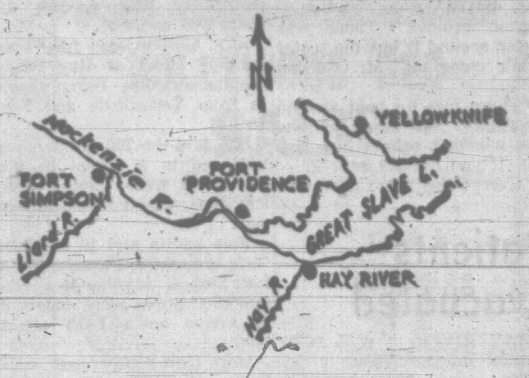

FLOOD WATERS from the Hay River are shown flowing through town of Hay River after flow from ice breakup was unable to enter ice-locked Great Slave Lake. Number of residents have been air-lifted out of stricken community. Attention today shifted to similar-hit town of Fort Simpson on Mackenzie River. (CP) Wirephoto.)

Evacuation of Second Town Planned in N.W.T. Floods

750 Set To Flee By 'Copter

FORT SIMPSON, N.W.T. (CP)—A flood crest moving down the Liard River was expected to hit this island community at the junction of the Liard and Mackenzie tonight and five helicopters were being rushed into the area in an effort to evacuate the 750 residents. Three-quarters of the island was already under water.

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

18 Years' Work Gone in Minute

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—"I just got on my feet—then I lose the whole thing."

This is the tragedy of the Hay River flood in the words of town laborer John Bouvier.

One minute he had a modest home, a garage, a collection of tools, a 16-foot fishing boat and two outboard motors. The next minute, they were gone in a sweep of angry flood waters.

Bouvier, 44, his wife and four children — the youngest is 22 months — escaped with only the clothes on their backs.

"We just had time to get out of bed, dress the kids and get out of the door—then there was water all over the place," he said.

"We had no blankets, nothing."

When awakened by police early Tuesday, the Bouviers, who live near the Hay River's east channel, didn't realize the seriousness of the threat, he said. But after a leisurely breakfast they saw the water begin to climb quickly. The family pulled out in haste.

NO INSURANCE

There was no flood insurance on the six-room structure, valued at $3,500. "I don't think a man can get flood insurance here," said the grim Bodvarson.

"I'm going to have to build again somewhere, but not down there," he said. "But money is a problem. I couldn't even buy timbers for the foundation. We're all so broke we can't get out of here."

Rudy Steiner, head of Territorial Expeditors, estimates his loss at $100,000 which included house, garage, office and contracting equipment. The buildings were carried away from Steiner's property.

"Eighteen years of hard work and it's all gone in half an hour," he said bitterly. He and his wife, Hazel, and their two children fled their house with only the clothes they were wearing.

LAING WILL INSPECT FLOOD-STRICKEN AREA

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing will fly into Yellowknife and then by light plane to flood-stricken Hay River tonight, Commissioner Gordon Robertson of the Northwest Territories, said today.

Mr. Robertson said arrangements have been made to pick up Mr. Laing, now at Vancouver, at Edmonton with a plane carrying two senior northern affairs officials to Yellowknife.

WILSON MEETS PEARSON

Mac Blamed For Trade Slip

LONDON (UPI)—British Labor Leader Harold Wilson, who could be the country's prime minister within a year, today promised Canadian Prime Minister Pearson that a Labor government would go all out to bolster Commonwealth trade.

Wilson, the opinion poll favorite to oust Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the next British election, outlined his strong views on Commonwealth trade to Pearson during a 50-minute chat in the new Canadian leader's plush hotel suite.

The two men, old acquaintances from their previous days in government, also talked informally over orange juice about the general international situation and Western defence problems.

The pipe-smoking Wilson made it clear after the meeting, however, that Commonwealth trade dominated the discussions.

"I feel that Commonwealth trade has been allowed to become run down," the Socialist leader told newsmen. "In my view, there was no reason for this."

"I do not accept, as the British government seems to, that an historic downward trend in the Commonwealth trade is inevitable."

Firings Protested By Tory Ex-Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister, cabled Prime Minister Pearson in London today to protest "the absolutely ruthless" replacement of veterans affairs department employees.

Mr. Churchill, also a former veterans affairs minister, asked for immediate reinstatement on the Canadian Pension Commission of Ken MacKay, formerly of Drayton Valley, Alta., and Winnipeg, and a "cessation of this abuse of ministerial authority."

At the same time, he sent a telegram to new Veterans Minister Roger Teillet describing Mr. MacKay's release as "a disgraceful act" and stating that this "deprived First World War veterans and the province of Alberta of a representative on the pension commission."

In an interview, Mr. Churchill said Mr. MacKay was appointed to the pension commission May 1, 1962, by Conservative cabinet order for a one-year term. He said Mr. MacKay was notified last Friday there would be no extension of his term.

In his telegram to Mr. Teillet, Mr. Churchill said "the practice has been to continue the non-permanent appointees to the War Veterans Allowance Board and to the Pension Commission on a year-to-year renewal basis until a permanent position opens or until retirement at age 70 or after 10 years' service."

T. D. Anderson, commission chairman, told a reporter that Mr. MacKay's work had been "entirely satisfactory." Mr. Anderson confirmed Mr. Churchill's statement that the practice on temporary appointments had been to continue them on a year-to-year basis or until retirement at age 70.

TWO-MAN TEAM

U.S. Climbers Tame Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—Two American climbers conquered 29,028-foot Mount Everest Wednesday in the first United States attempt to scale the world's highest mountain.

A message received today at the Everest Expedition base camp and radioed to the outside world said two members of the expedition had reached the summit of Everest, but their names were not yet known.

No details of the climb were available in the first radio flash to Katmandu of the American triumph.

The assault on the Himalayan peak was made by a team that left a camp 1,200 feet below the summit.

The announcement that the mountain had been conquered came after two days of radio silence between the base camp and the assault team.

It was the earliest time of the year that the Himalayan peak had ever been conquered.

Everest was first scaled by New Zealander Sir Edmund Hillary and Sherpa porter Tensing Norgay May 29, 1953.

The 18-man expedition to Everest was led by veteran mountaineer Norman G. Dyrenfurth of Santa Monica, Calif., and financed by the U.S. National Geographic Society.

The Japanese Broadcasting Corporation said today its reporters saw two unidentified warships when they flew over the area where the crew of a Communist Chinese freighter claimed it was torpedoed Wednesday.

The Japanese Maritime Safety Board commented that neither Japan nor the United States had any warships in the area at that time.

The 9,482-ton Yue Jin sank off South Korea, reporting it was attacked by an unidentified vessel in the East-China Sea.

The Japanese Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) showed pictures on a television newscast of two warships steaming in open waters. It identified the two vessels as the ones spotted by its reporters in a flight over the area.

NHK said the two warships were steaming in a circle about half a mile from the spot where the freighter sank. The warships appeared to be cruisers, it added, and one of them bore the number 205.

PAPER HITS U.S.

In Hong Kong, the Communist Chinese language newspaper New Evening Post suggested "trouble makers, possibly Americans," sank the Yue Jin on its way to a Japanese port.

Japanese officials could not confirm the crew's claim that it was hit by three torpedoes and suggested, because all crew members survived, that the vessel might have run aground or hit a Korean war mine which minesweeping teams failed to clean up.

GOVERNMENT-BUILT CAUSEWAY BLAMED FOR ANNUAL FLOOD

Ice Wall in Hay River Stops for Nothing

By LESLIE MILLIN

"When that ice comes down the river, it doesn't stop for anything. It just keeps coming, and the noise is like thunder."

Two Victorians, former residents of Hay River, N.W.T., were trying to describe the awesome sight of spring breakup on one of Canada's northland rivers—and the even more awesome sight of the river in flood.

"It's quite a thing to see a wall of ice going over and over," says Mrs. Marlies Townsend, 3375 Maplewood, a resident of the Hay River area since 1949.

"And it's quite a situation to have 2,000 people stranded on an island. It happens regularly every spring."

Floods like the one isolating Hay River at present are not common—the last bad one was in 1951—but there is moderate flooding every spring, and every spring the residents of Hay River watch the banks anxiously and wonder when the government will do something for them.

For 11 years, says Saanich fur farmer William Hopper, Imperial Oil agent in Hay River for seven years, the federal government has filled in a causeway through the west channel of the Hay River to allow the Mackenzie Highway through to the delta town.

For 11 years, the denizens of Hay River have watched the "fill" back up flood waters until the weight of the river could no longer be restrained, and highway and causeway were together swept down into Great Slave Lake.

"The federal government is responsible for the situation as it exists there," says Mr. Hopper bitterly. "They never built a bridge as they should have."

"We fought for that bridge, and all we got were excuses and no money."

"That 'fill' was holding back at least six feet of water. The bridge should have been completed 10 years ago."

"They've never done anything about flood control. I don't think they believe in Hay River. They say in 10 years it'll just be a ghost town."

Besides being a fishing centre, Hay River is the communications nerve centre of the Great Slave Lake area, says Mr. Hopper, and has a magnificent natural harbor.

Mr. Hopper is now a milk farmer on the East Saanich Road, but still holds several pieces of property in Hay River.

He is convinced that Hay River will live with the threat of flood and isolation every year until the mud and logs on which the Mackenzie Highway crosses the delta town are replaced by a bridge, and he doesn't think this will happen until a Northwest Territories commissioner lives in the north, not in Ottawa.

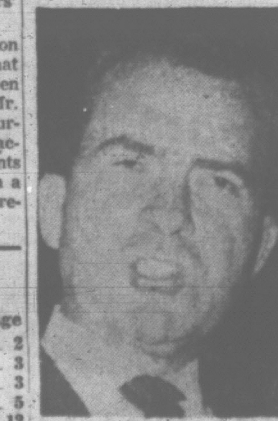

Until that happens, residents of Hay River will listen for the thunder of the ice breakup, inspect the banks nervously and wait.

EVACUEES WEARY

'Everything Moved... Houses Pulled Over'

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—Evacuees from the flooded community of Hay River, 100 miles northwest of here, Wednesday night described damage done by the flood as unbelievable.

"I was never so scared in my life," said Mrs. Alex Gordon as she stepped from a Pacific Western Airlines Beaver aircraft that had evacuated her from Hay River. She carried a blanket-wrapped infant in her arms.

"I saw the water coming in to my house Tuesday morning. We moved to a duplex on higher ground. There was water around it but the water didn't come in," Mr. Gordon said.

"There was no heat and no electricity. It was terrible. You wouldn't believe how bad it is if you haven't seen it."

"Everything has moved."

Patients Evacuated

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—About one dozen hospital patients and five pregnant women were being evacuated today by air to Fort Smith.

One of the male patients was suffering from a bleeding ulcer and another had blood poisoning.

BONNER:

'Tourists Helping To Keep B.C. Green'

The unceasing flow of U.S. tourists over the border is helping to "keep B.C. green," Attorney-General Robert Bonner told an international conference of motor vehicle administrators in the Empress Hotel Wednesday night.

"Motor vehicle administrators in Canada and the United States have everything in common," Mr. Bonner added.

"There are, alas, plenty of accident statistics to prove it."

The attorney-general congratulated Region Four, American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, on its successful four-day conference presided over by George Lindsay, B.C. motor vehicles superintendent.

"I hope there is nothing in the future which will ever change the happy relationships existing between our two countries," he told the visitors.

SCORE HIT

The Glee Club of Mount Douglas High School put on the entertainment program and scored a big hit with the more than 200 delegates.

Round after round of applause was given to their choral singing and to the soloists—Barbara Ann Court, Gordon Callow, Frann Cox, John Hilliard and Gary Dillaugh.

"It was a delightful change from some of the more sophisticated entertainment we have had at other conferences south of the border," said a U.S. delegate.

Edward M. Syring, 34, of Salem, Ore., was elected president of the association in succession to Mr. Lindsay, who was presented with an illuminated scroll signed by delegates.

W. Germany Fires Rocket

CUXHAVEN, Germany (UPI)—West German scientists shot a three-stage rocket 65 miles into the sky today and put the country back into the space race.

"I'd call it a partial success—I meant the thing to hit 95 miles high," designer Berthold Seliger said.

FIRST AID DEMONSTRATION AT SCHOOL

Mock War Thrills Spectators

A dozen of the "enemy" were killed and the remainder of the squad "routed" in a "sneak attack" at University School Wednesday afternoon.

The mock battle, complete with rifles and blank ammunition, smoke screen and barricades was a part of the annual inspection of the 170 University School Cadet Corp (C. Scot. R.) on the school grounds. The purpose of the battle was to demonstrate the first-aid techniques learned by the cadets, but most of the 300 spectators were more interested in the exceptionally real battle.

COMPANY DRILL

Lieut. Col. G. G. Brown, CD, of the First Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was the inspecting officer. He inspected the 166 boys, who ranged in age from 14 to 18, then took the salute in a march-past by the five platoons.

The corps engaged in a company drill, and a guard of honor, under the command of Cadet Captain I. M. Dykes, fired a salute.

After the mock battle and a display by the 22-member band, Lt. Col. Brown presented the 1963 awards.

For shooting, Cadet D. L. Dennis was awarded the Junior Trophy; Cadet R. H. Barker the Intermediate Don Braidwood Cup, and C/Captain J. C. Mackie and C/Lieutenant A. D. Geissler jointly the Senior Harvey Rifle. C/Capt. J. C. Mackie was also awarded the DORA Goldby Trophy, the Healy's Range Rich Cup and the Master Cadet Certificate.

The "Stick" man of the day was Cadet T. S. H. Roberts for the platoons, and C/Lance Corporal A. J. Timmis for the band.

The coveted Platoon Cup was awarded to the No. 3 Platoon, commanded by C/Lt. Geissler.

Lt. Col. Brown, in his closing remarks, said it was gratifying

Five adults and 10 children were brought to Fort Smith on four planes. Another 16 adults and 26 children were expected to arrive on a DC-3 flight later.

More than 200 persons were flown out of Hay River Wednesday night before evacuation operations were halted by darkness. They were taken to Yellowknife, 117 miles north of Hay River, as well as to Fort Smith.

SEE EARLY RELIEF

Mayor McBryan said Wednesday night that relief for the flooded town could come "earlier than expected."

He said a crack in ice on Great Slave Lake had appeared 150 yards from shore. He said army demolition crews were to report today on action they may take to further break up lake ice to allow jammed ice to clear the river's mouth.

Mr. McBryan said that five miles of ice still remain jammed in the Hay River.

An army demolition expert, Maj. R. R. Buckley, who a week ago supervised blasting to ease a flood at Whitecourt, Alta., was Montana State Patrol was named vice-president; Harold Timmermans of Arizona Highway Department, second vice-president. William Cassell of Colorado was appointed secretary.

Mr. M. Bright, director of motor vehicles for California, said his department is attempting to find out why so many people drive the wrong way on freeways.

"Since the beginning of the year there have been several hundred incidents of this nature. Many of them are due either to drinking or to drivers turning the wrong way by mistake."

"But, strangely, we find that many do it intentionally. There people usually miss their turn-off, look in the mirror, see a clear road and think it is safe to make a U-turn and drive back to the turn-off against the line of traffic."

School Choirs Wind Up Annual Music Festival

Last day of competition in the 13th annual Greater Victoria Music Festival, was devoted to school choral classes. With Dr. Wayne Hertz adjudicating, sessions continued all day today. This evening they will wind up at Oak Bay Junior High School with senior high ensembles and one opera class for junior or senior groups.

Tonight's program commences at 7:30. Final program of the '63 festival will be the schools' honor performance Friday night at Central Junior High. Starting at 8, this program will comprise a selection of top performances in choral, instrumental, dancing and speech arts.

Blizzard Rages

FLIN FLON (CP)—One of the worst blizzards in local memory today threw the northern Manitoba mining community of Flin Flon into almost complete disruption as almost 10 inches of snow fell in the five hours before noon.

He said that since power and lights had been restored everyone lodged in the school should be fairly comfortable for the night.

While officials said there appeared to be no physical danger in remaining on the flooded island, the town faced increasing health hazards because of flooded sewage facilities, a shortage of drinking water and restricted electric power. Power was off completely for several hours Wednesday.

The temperature at Hay River Wednesday hovered near the 30-degree mark.

A poll was conducted and 353 elected to leave.

After a 45-minute flight to Yellowknife with 50 evacuees in a C-46 transport, Capt. Kees Franksberger, Pacific Western Airlines pilot, said his passengers "looked very sad and quiet." Quite a few of the 18 children on the plane were crying.

Capt. Franksberger said the Hay River airport was "surprisingly good."

"We were a little apprehensive at first because there was a weight limit of 10,000 pounds and the loaded C-46 weighs more than 40,000."

Capt. Franksberger said the plane had to wait one hour at Hay River while evacuees arrived "by canoe and outboard and everything."

A relay of trucks and boats carried evacuees through the muddy townsite, laced by stretches of water and mud, to the airport.

An RCAF C-119 transport plane was to leave Edmonton early today for Hay River carrying 2,500 pounds of Red Cross emergency supplies. The supplies were packed in 12 large wicker baskets to be dropped by parachute. The C-119 is too big to land at the airport.

$100,000 Hall Wins Approval

Plans are to be drawn for a new $100,000 community hall for Gordon Head.

Residents of the area Wednesday night gave enthusiastic approval to a scheme to replace the 70-year-old building now in use on Tyndall Ave.

After plans have been drawn the area is to be canvassed for financial support.

A covered, heated swimming pool, a 7x30-foot hall, a full basement to allow multiple use of facilities and a stage and dressing rooms are to be included in the plans.

Jury Acquits Woman, 23 Of Saturna Island Murder

Mrs. Marion Money, 23, of Saturna Island was found not guilty in B.C. Assize Court Wednesday of the non-capital murder of her husband, William James Money, Jan. 12, 1962.

The jury of 11 men and one woman returned a verdict of "not guilty by reason of insanity" after being so instructed by Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton.

Mrs. Money, who was brought from the provincial hospital at Essondale to answer the charge, pleaded not guilty.

Crown prosecutor J. Alan Baker, QC, told the jury it must determine the state of Mrs. Money's mind at the time the murder was committed.

IN MENTAL HOSPITAL

Her counsel, Angelo Branca, said Mrs. Money had been confined to a mental hospital since Jan. 12, 1962. He said he would admit as a fact that she was perfectly able to instruct counsel.

Mr. Branca said Mrs. Money married the deceased, W. J. Money, in December, 1959, and in March, 1960, was delivered of a dead child, prematurely born. Shortly after, she was confined to Crease Clinic because of a mental disorder.

Subsequently she had another child, but in December,

N.W.T. FLOODS

Mayor McBryan estimated flood damage to the town so far at more than $1,000,000.

Trucks, bulldozers, boats and planes combined to evacuate people from Hay River, left in shambles by still threatening flood waters.

Three trucks carrying blanket-evacuees nosed off water covered streets and one of them almost tipped over before it was pulled back on the street.

Boats used on the last leg of the trip to the half flooded airport had to dodge ice.

Another 400-450 persons were to follow today.

Weary disaster officials here hope the exodus will help ease problems—health, water shortage, cleanup—which will face Hay River.

About 90 per cent of the town is flooded to a degree. A quarter of the buildings have been swept off foundations or set ajar.

About 600 people stayed overnight at the main evacuation headquarters, the two-storey St. Paul's separate school, one of the few town structures free of flood waters.

They slept in the gym, corridors and classrooms—or as one person expressed it "everywhere but on the coat hooks."

POWER RESTORED

Before the evacuation began, people in the federal day school were transferred to St. Paul's where power was restored after a six-hour town-wide blackout.

Propane stoves and tanks were taken to St. Paul's by boat to provide cooking facilities during the blackout.

Most of the population received shots for typhoid and para-typhoid fever with serum flown from Edmonton.

Most of the evacuees to Yellowknife and Fort Smith were women and children, although a few men made the trip.

Seven planes chartered by northern airlines—or donated were used—two C-46s, Bristol, DC-3, three Otters and a Cessna 155.

Gravel and delivery trucks carrying evacuees were towed by bulldozers through deep water.

The food supply apparently was sufficient. Drinking water may be another matter. There was a considerable amount in storage tanks around town but it was difficult to obtain at times.

Jury Acquits Woman, 23 Of Saturna Island Murder

mentioned nightmares in which she was about to die.

"There was no disagreement known of in the home," Mr. Branca continued. "They lived quite happily together."

Mr. Branca said he admitted that the deceased came to his death as the result of an unlawful act on the part of the defendant in bed at her home.

"She had the revolver in her hand and from it were discharged two bullets, each of which entered the deceased and caused his death," counsel said.

Dr. J. E. Boulting, deputy medical superintendent at Essondale, testified that Mrs. Money was suffering from a disease of the mind at the time of the murder.

Defence Sharing Planned

LONDON (UPI)—Canada and Britain agreed today to work toward closer co-operation in the field of defence research and development.

The agreement was reached during a 30-minute meeting between Canada's new defence minister Paul Hellyer and his British opposite, Peter Thorneycroft.

"We had a very beneficial talk," Hellyer told newsmen. "We're hopeful that from it will come a greater degree of co-operation in the research and development field than in the past."

"Modern weapons are so expensive that this seems the best way to get maximum value and utilization out of them."

MAY BUY PLANE

Hellyer said officials of both governments would follow up today's ministerial meeting on "two or three specific proposals. He added that one of them involved a reconnaissance "drone" aircraft now under development by Canada Ltd., of Montreal.

The Canadian defence minister said he and Thorneycroft also covered the main topics to come before the NATO ministerial meeting in Ottawa later this month.

FOLLOW BIRDS TO $25

For years tourists have found that it paid to "follow the birds to Victoria."

Now Victorians will have a chance at a pay-off if they "follow the birds with a camera."

Division recently of the Vancouver and Island Publicity Bureau into separate Victoria and Island groups has brought back the old "Follow the Birds" slogan which was dropped for several years in favor of the all-embracing "Treasure Island" promotion.

The Victoria Visitors' Bureau is in the process of organizing its promotional pamphlet to draw visitors to the area and wants a good "Follow the Birds" picture for the front cover in place of the stylized seagull drawing used in past years, bureau commissioner William Hawkins announced today.

A prize of $25 is being offered for the best color transparency submitted by May 31 to the bureau office at 786 Government Street. Unused pictures will be returned.

The contest will be judged by the bureau's advertising committee, consisting of Hugh Curtis, Michael Hall-Patch, Maurice Cownden, Pat McLoughlin and Fred Usher.

nuclear role for Canada, the CLC favors full Canadian membership within NATO based on a non-nuclear military contribution.

This idea, argues the congress, is a third alternative for Canada. It says it is a better choice than the "military" view that Canada should remain in NATO and accept tactical nuclear weapons or than the "neutralist-pacifist" view that Canada should quit NATO and stand neutral.

The defence thinking of the congress, central body for more than 1,050,000 trade unionists, was approved in February by the CLC executive council, inner cabinet of organized labor. It was made public in the latest issue of Canadian Labor, official journal of the congress.

The congress says the military value of the tactical nuclear weapons acquired by Canada has become doubtful. The weapons are either obsolete already or will be soon, it says.

"The question, which a country of Canada's size must face, is whether it can afford to indulge in this type of investment in military weapons, which become obsolete even before they are off the assembly line."

"By the logic of our size, our resources, our technical capabilities, we should be making our military contribution to things which we could develop and maintain."

This course, says the CLC, would give Canada some room for manoeuvre within the NATO alliance and some degree of independence at a relatively modest financial cost.

TOKYO (AP) — A three-engine passenger plane crashed on Awaji Island Wednesday about one hour after taking off from Osaka, in central Japan. Seven of the nine passengers aboard were reported killed, reports reaching Tokyo said.

PRESIDENT of Canadian Pacific Airlines, Grant McConachie, has been named Canadian Businessman of the Year by Sales and Marketing Executives International in New York. He was chosen for the award by the group's 10 affiliated clubs in Canada.

Widening Job Soon For Cadboro Bay Road

A start on the widening and reconstruction of Cadboro Bay Road is anticipated sometime this year, Oak Bay engineer Geoffrey White said Wednesday.

He expects the first stage of what may be divided into three works projects to be the difficult stretch between Beach Drive and Cedar Hill-Cross Road, including a revamped intersection at Cadboro Bay and Cedar Hill.

This would cost about $50,000, even though it is only a block long.

Mr. White said an extraordinary amount of blasting and filling would be required to widen the bottleneck that exists and bring the grade into line with secondary highway specifications.

Final approval of the project must be given by the minister of highways since there is expected to be provincial government cost-sharing. Total cost of the 1½-mile

DID GIANT WAVE CAUSE SUB SINKING?

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — An oceanographer has raised a theory that a giant underwater wave may have dragged the nuclear submarine Thresher to its doom.

Peter Bemish, a doctoral candidate in oceanography at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said Wednesday the North Atlantic was belted on April 10 by a severe southeast storm accompanied by 300-foot underwater waves. Scientists believe one of these waves might have caught the sub, forcing it downward about 100 yards in an extremely brief period of time, he said.

"This sudden drop along with some technical failure might have been the cause of the Thresher sinking," Bemish said.

Haiti Refugees Guaranteed Exit

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Haiti and the Dominican Republic moved closer to ending their six-day-old crisis today with safe-conduct passes granted to 15 political refugees in the Dominican embassy here.

The Haitian government agreed to transfer the care of seven other refugees in the embassy to the Colombian ambassador, who is taking charge of Dominican affairs here following a break in diplomatic relations between Port au Prince and Santo Domingo.

A five-man peacekeeping team from the Organization of American States was winding up its three-day assignment here and preparing to fly to Santo Domingo to confer with Dominican officials.

'KHRUSHCHEV HAS HIS HANDS FULL'

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson was asked at a press conference Wednesday whether he anticipated a meeting with Premier Khrushchev.

"Mr. Khrushchev already has his hands full," Pearson replied with a grin. "He's got Charlotte Whitton over there at the moment. She's the mayor of Ottawa."

Even the British reporters joined in the general laughter.

The Core of the Problem

MR. CHRISTIAN HERTER, President Kennedy's commercial ambassador at large, says the United States intends to negotiate tariff reductions across the board. Instead of bargaining on individual items, one by one, as in the past, it will reduce import duties on large classes of goods by fifty per cent as permitted by the new Trade Expansion Act. Other countries, of course, would be expected to give the United States similar concessions.

If these goals, or anything like them, can be achieved the free world will see a vast expansion of international trade and a resulting growth of wealth. But grave obstacles must be overcome, the largest question mark being the policy of the European Common Market.

For the most part the negotiations opening late this year will lie between the United States and Europe because they are the chief traders in many sorts of goods. Any tariff reductions arranged by these two great exporters and importers will apply to all members of GATT, including Canada.

Nations like Canada must make their own contributions to the general process of tariff cutting. As the American government has said, there will be no "free riders." But as Mr. Herter doubtless was told in Ottawa a few days ago, Canada begins the ride under serious handicaps because its trading structure is lopsided and in heavy deficit.

Last year Canada's total imports of goods and services were larger than its exports by $848 millions. The deficit has fallen year by year but is still far too large. Moreover, it is concentrated in the single market of the United States.

There Canada's sales (visible and invisible) were $1.1 billions less than its purchases last year. This deficit wiped out, four times over, a surplus of $268 earned in overseas markets.

If they thought about it for a moment the American people would see that Canada cannot long support a deficit of this magnitude in a single market. If the United States were trading on the same basis its deficit, in terms of its huge economy, would be about $15 billions, an unthinkable figure.

By one means or another Canada's trade with its neighbor must be brought into better balance. For Canada this is the first objective of the pending GATT negotiations, the highest priority of national trade policy.

The Pearson government hopes to reduce the present deficit somewhat by persuading Canadian manufacturers to use more industrial components made at home but there are definite limits to this policy. It would be economic folly of the worst sort to raise the cost of Canadian manufacturing, already in a weak competitive position, by compelling it to use unnecessarily expensive components.

Though some progress may be made along these lines, and some has been made already, under the Diefenbaker government, Canada's main purpose must be the sale of more goods to the United States.

That purpose can be achieved in the GATT negotiations but only if the United States reduces its tariffs on the particular goods that Canada produces at competitive cost. As it stands, the American tariff encourages the importation of Canadian raw materials and semi-manufactured articles but discourages the admission of fully manufactured articles. And even how some American manufacturers are protesting against Canadian imports like lumber.

It seems highly improbable that the ordinary bargaining methods of GATT will solve Canada's unique problem in the American market. Some larger and bolder method may well be needed.

Within the multilateral rules of GATT two or more nations (like the six of the European Common Market) can agree to reduce or abolish tariffs between themselves while enforcing a common tariff against the rest of the world. That path is open to Canada and the United States.

It would be impossible, of course, for Canada to accept an immediate free-trade deal with its neighbor without wrecking an economy built, for more than a century, on protective tariffs. But if tariff reductions were spread over a fairly long term of years Canadian industries could adjust themselves to new competitive conditions and meanwhile they would gain increasing entry into the world's richest market.

If such a deal is to be considered, however, it cannot be on a fifty-fifty basis. Since Canada is a much smaller and poorer country than its neighbor, and already is in a grave deficit position, American tariffs would have to be reduced much faster than those of Canada for a good many years at least. The GATT negotiations will give the Pearson government an opportunity to explore these hopeful possibilities. They are worth careful exploration.

Into New Hands

INDONESIA WON A BLOOD- less conquest yesterday. It was the day on which the seven-month custodianship of the United Nations ceased in West New Guinea. President Sukarno's government now assumes full sovereignty over the part of the island which once was a Dutch colony. The only restraining condition is that before the end of 1969 the native population must be given an opportunity to vote on whether it wishes to retain the arrangement or become independent. That gives Indonesia more than six years in which to persuade the Papuans that they will be better off as part of Djakarta's empire.

With the help of Russian military supplies Indonesia last year sought to drive the Dutch out of West New Guinea. The effort was unsuccessful, but in the face of sharply rising costs of administering the territory, and the likelihood of persistent future attempts by President Sukarno, the Dutch decided to relinquish their last East Indian colony.

The half-island—the other part is governed by Australia—came under United Nations authority during the transition stage, the first territory to be directly administered by the world organization. There seems little doubt that the native population, most of it in a very primitive state of culture, will make the Indonesian rule permanent.

The people are of a different race from the Indonesians and have heretofore had nothing in common. But while there is at present no doubt a fairly strong attachment to the former Dutch regime, Indonesia should have little difficulty within the next six years in creating a favorable climate for the plebiscite.

Although the rest of the world has displayed slight concern about the New Guinea development, the methods used by Indonesia to gain its objective leave little room for complacency. This was military blackmail of a pretty obvious kind. Indonesia had no inherent right to the territory, and the ameliorating intervention of the United Nations does not hide the fact that a strong military bluff succeeded.

Decimal Coins—Not So Simple

BRITAIN MAY ACCOMPANY, or follow at an early date, the entry of New Zealand and Australia into the field of decimal currency.

But if the change is made in the three countries, it won't mean a simple translation of pounds, shillings and pence into dollars and cents with equivalent value to the Canadian-American money, give or take a few exchange points.

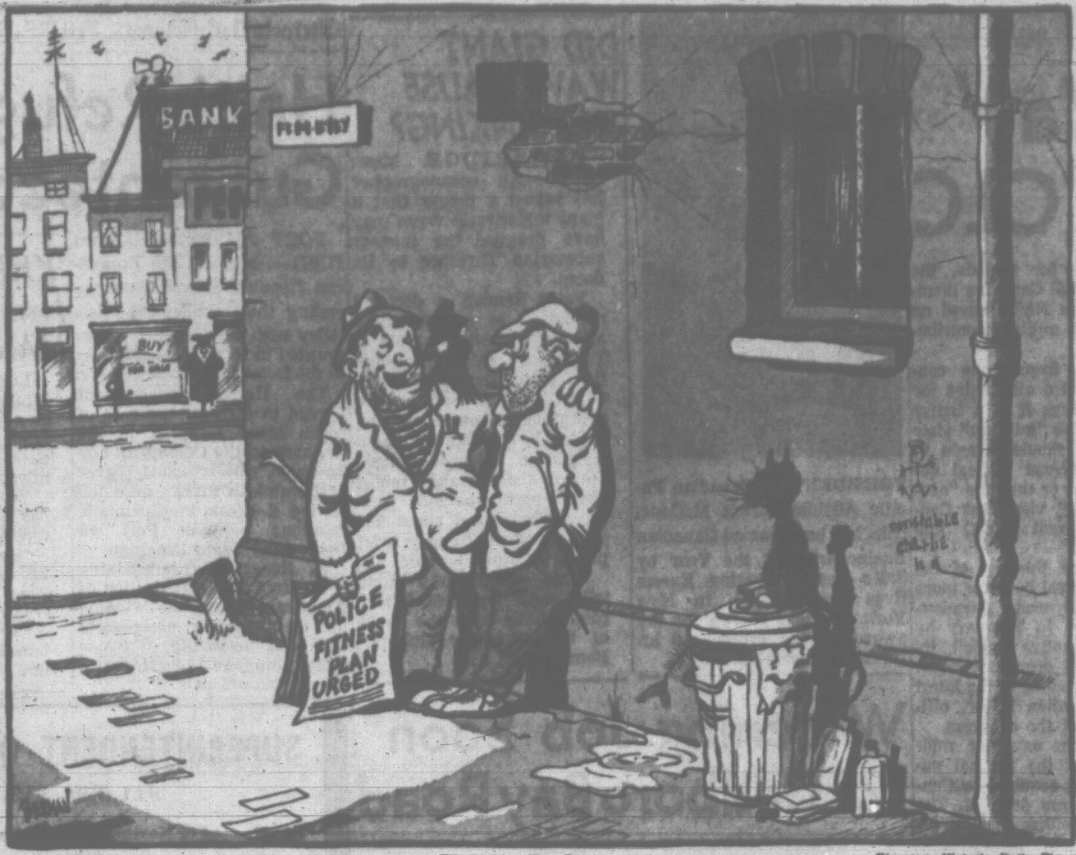

In the next month or two a special committee set up in January of last year under Lord Halsbury will report on decimal coinage for Britain. Indications are that the report will favor the change.

How will it work? According to some speculation Britain will reduce the number of pennies in a shilling, making them 10 instead of the present 12, and the next major unit will be the 10-shilling note, probably under a different name. Some propose it be called a britanna.

A similar system is anticipated in Australia, but again names will vary. The unit of a penny may be multiplied by 10 for the next coin, but the 10-shilling note could become a "roo," the last syllable of kangaroo.

So the hopeful North American traveller, looking toward the day when he could proffer interchangeable dollars and cents to the British merchant, or the shopkeeper down under, will probably find the transaction far from that simple.

He may have trouble figuring how much an "S" with two strokes running through it, and a "C" with one oblique stroke represents in terms of L/s/d. But when the whole thing is simplified with the decimal system, he'll probably never be able to count his change because it will take too long to figure how much he had in the foreign currency in the first place.

FROM OTTAWA

How Big a Parliament Do We Need?

THE PEARSON government must tackle at an early date, the difficult problem of redistribution. No one denies the necessity of new legislation respecting electoral boundaries. Redistribution is supposed to follow the census but we have already had two general elections on the basis, not of the 1961 tally but of the 1951 decennial count. Everyone agrees that the disparities between ridings have become utterly fantastic; one Quebec member, for example, represents 79,000 voters while a colleague of the same party speaks for 4,700.

These disparities are of two types. Some provinces, notably Saskatchewan, are presently over-represented in Parliament while others are under-represented. (This is true even when account is taken of the 15 per cent escape clause which was introduced after the 1951 census to protect the Prairies from what was considered an excessive loss of seats.) In addition, there are striking discrepancies within the provinces between rural and urban ridings.

There is also general agreement among the parties that the detailed work of drawing new electoral boundaries should be turned over to an independent commission or commissions. But the commissioners must be given terms of reference; general instructions covering such matters as the total number of seats, the average urban-rural ratio, permissible variation to suit local conditions and so on. It is at this point that the matter is likely to become highly controversial.

Much work, of course, is done in organizations but in Parliament, as in other organizations, the value of a committee is likely to vary, beyond a certain point, inversely with its size. We managed for nearly three decades with a House of 245 members. Recent Parliaments of 265 members have certainly been more expensive but their superiority over those of the past is not self-evident.

Rural Strength

The Conservative party, having been virtually excluded from larger urban areas, now has an obvious interest in a system heavily weighted in favor of the countryside. Social Credit strength is also predominantly rural; it failed in its recent assault on Montreal and except in the Quebec City area carried only the smaller centres or country ridings.

While it is improbable that arguments based on party advantage would have much impact on the public, appeals to regionalism have sometimes been rewarding. No area likes to lose seats in the national legislature. There may, accordingly, be substance to rumors that some Liberals are thinking in terms of a House of Commons increased by 20 or 30 members.

Such a plan would permit the commissioners to satisfy the demands of provinces presently under-represented without subtracting seats from those which would otherwise suffer losses. It might, by appeasing the opposition, facilitate the passage of the bill through a minority Parliament.

The disadvantages, apart from added cost, may be less obvious. It would be very difficult to argue that a larger House would make for the more efficient conduct of the public business; indeed there is a good deal in recent history to suggest that the reverse might be true. Even in a closely divided House, the role of a good many members is somewhat obscure. When, as often happens, one party enjoys a large majority, there is a notable increase in the ranks of the unemployed.

The more zealous are apt to complain of the severe limitations on private members' time, and as there is no prospect of extending it, the sense of grievance will merely be increased if it has to be divided among more claimants.

Committee Work

much work, of course, is done in organizations but in Parliament, as in other organizations, the value of a committee is likely to vary, beyond a certain point, inversely with its size.

We managed for nearly three decades with a House of 245 members. Recent Parliaments of 265 members have certainly been more expensive but their superiority over those of the past is not self-evident.

In the last U.S. Congress 437 members of the House managed to represent 183,000,000 people. The "average" U.S. constituency thus numbered about 418,000 people as compared to 87,000 in Canada. Saskatchewan currently sends to Parliament 17 members; the five states of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming (which together have about six times Saskatchewan's population) sent 16 members to Washington.

The Senate is much the more influential of the two Houses of Congress. While its steady growth in prestige is not to be attributed to a single cause, one commonly cited by political scientists is the fact that it is a small chamber affording far greater opportunities to the individual member than a congressman can find in the crowded House.

At Confederation the Canadian House of Commons consisted of 181 members. There was no ceiling on membership; the basic rule was that Quebec should have a fixed quota of 65 members while the representation of other provinces fluctuated according to the ratios between their populations and that of Quebec.

This rule was sometimes ignored; new provinces were given excessive representation, perhaps based in part upon optimistic expectations of settlement. Later various floors were established, notably the provision that no province could have fewer members than its Senate entitlement.

Membership Increased

In these circumstances membership steadily increased until the end of the First World War. For nearly three decades, it was then stabilized at 245 members, a convenient number given the dimensions of the chamber. But in 1947 it was decided to alter the basis of representation. The Quebec rule was dropped and the size of the House fixed at 255 members; a figure revised to 262 with the addition of Newfoundland in 1949.

But this was not the end of the matter. The "fixed" membership endured for one election. When it appeared from the 1951 census that the Prairie region would lose members, the government hit upon two expedients; the so-called 15 per cent floor and a new "fixed" membership of 265. Quite apart, therefore, from Newfoundland's seven seats, the House has been increased by 17 since 1947.

If it is to be increased again for the third consecutive time, the pattern will be well established. Future governments, to avoid the regional embarrassments of redistribution, will justify themselves by the precedents of 1947, 1952 and 1963. A House, already too large probably for maximum efficiency, will grow more and more unwieldy.

Possibly there will be on this occasion some serious discussion of the optimum size of the House of Commons. This is, after all, a matter of concern to the entire country. Until now, however, it seems to have been regarded as a subject of minor interest in comparison to the claims of the several regions and the utterly fascinating business of constituency boundaries.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Bilingualism

The actual complaint about French teaching in B.C. is that the student is faced with the almost insurmountable task of digesting the complexities of the French grammar without having had previous contact with the phonetics, rhythm and basic conversational vocabulary. Is it not a fact that a child already handles his mother tongue easily long before he first attends school? Therefore, I believe that the primary school program of a second language should be planned with that in mind.

There is another aspect which should be considered and this I wish to suggest after having first stated that English is my second language, French is my mother tongue and my education has been predominantly French having attended school in Quebec's French-language schools. I learned my second language in the same institutions.

This other aspect to be considered is this: should everybody be bilingual in a country where two languages are official? I do not think so and this is the position taken by almost all exponents of multiculturalism and bilingualism in this country. To me those expressions qualify the state of mind that should prevail in order that two compatible cultures should be allowed to grow side by side within the same boundaries and under the same laws. To become bilingual should be the goal of all who intend to serve in fields which will bring them in contact with both groups.

Although becoming bilingual should not become compulsory, I do think that enough basic French should be given in primary schools so that when the time comes to make a choice, the student will not be handicapped by absolute ignorance of the difficulties that lie ahead. He should also, by that time, have been able to master the gymnastics that make pronunciation easy.

It is my experience that once one masters the grammar of his own mother tongue, that of the second language becomes a complement rather than an entirely new science. Especially when it has to deal with two languages which trace the greatest part of their skeleton to a Greco-Roman foundation.

The greatest problem, to my mind, will be to find enough qualified teachers. Some kind of exchange deal with French Canada will have to be worked out. This might be the best way to promote better acquaintance and to erase a lot of the prejudicial ideas that still remain with both of our major groups.

I do think, especially, that it is high time for both the English and the French networks of the CBC to cover Canada from coast to coast so that some encouragement be given to the learning of the two languages.

LONDON:

Problem Of Control

By RICHARD PURSER

THE "inter-allied" nuclear force agreement which the United States expects to be able to present to the May 21 NATO foreign and defence ministers meetings in Ottawa is a stop-gap measure intended to convey some impression of easing the obvious disarray in the Western alliance.

The disarray is caused by clashes between points of view: Washington feels that possession of independent nuclear deterrents by its allies divides and thus weakens the Western response to Soviet moves; Paris feels that Europe cannot in the long term count on anyone but itself for its defence; London feels the same thing but tries to avoid striking Gaullist attitudes; Bonn realizes that no one can substitute for the U.S. in guaranteeing European security, but worries that its own fundamental interests—Berlin, East Germany, and the eastern border—may be passed by; and Europe in general feels that collective equality with the U.S. is a virtue if not achieved at the price of alienation from the U.S.

Non-Gaullist Europeans—and not all Gaullists are in France—realize that Europe can hardly achieve nuclear equality with the U.S., given the time lag, but they feel that economic equality is on the way and that this should at least be matched by a less one-sided defence situation.

This means a role in deciding when nuclear weapons will be used and knowledge of the total strategic situation, rather than a general assurance from the U.S. that between Strategic Air Command, the missile bases and the Polaris submarines, everything is under control. The Gaullist fear that the U.S. would not risk its own existence under all circumstances to save West Europe from Soviet domination finds echoes, if less blunt, throughout the continent.

The U.S. has awakened somewhat late to European feeling, and has proposed various means of making a nuclear deterrent force appear a little more NATO and a little less purely American.

Basic Principle

The principle is this: NATO nations except the U.S. capable of providing systems that can deliver nuclear weapons to Soviet-controlled territory will hand over these systems to NATO international control.

In practice this means Britain will hand over its V-bombers and hydrogen bombs; Belgium, the Netherlands, Germany, Italy, Turkey, and possibly Greece and Canada, will hand over their jet fighter-bombers, supplied with U.S. nuclear bombs.

The nuclear bombs, aside from those made by Britain and carried in British planes, would be provided by the U.S. and under ultimate control of the "electronic lock" operated by the U.S. president.

The U.S., as its contribution, would provide three Polaris missile-carrying submarines, leaving the great bulk of the U.S. deterrent free from NATO control.

What, if anything, France would contribute remains uncertain. France already, before de Gaulle, had two squadrons committed to NATO and based in Germany. The U.S. said that in an inter-allied force these squadrons would naturally be supplied with U.S. A-bombs and merged with the rest.

From the behind-the-scenes French reaction, this announcement appears to have been decidedly unilateral on the part of the U.S., but despite the offence there is a good chance that the French will go along with it as a gesture of co-operation, secure in the knowledge that French strength is still based in France outside NATO.

In any case the "inter-allied" nuclear force plan cannot be presented as a long-term solution. First, the deterrent still remaining solely in U.S. hands is overwhelmingly superior to this collective force. Secondly, the question of control has not yet been solved.

A solution on control may well be reached in time for Ottawa; but European defence circles doubt whether it can be more than temporarily effective. The U.S. hopes to retain a veto over use of the force, so as to prevent its use except under circumstances that would also call into action the rest of the U.S. deterrent.

Many of the allies, notably Germany, favor quick replacement of any such clauses by straight majority rule. Britain insists on the privilege of withdrawing its own contribution whenever a "supreme national interest" such as Middle East oil prevails without the support of the rest of the alliance.

A compromise over control is likely to be reached. But the "inter-allied" force is doomed to early obsolescence owing to its dependence on manned aircraft; it cannot hope to equal the purely U.S. deterrent; it cannot at present achieve truly international control; and it cannot for long accommodate the special desire of France. The present problems will remain.

May 2, 1903 — Fernie: The town of Frank, Alberta, has been considered unsafe due to an expected mountain slide. Residents are being evacuated by the CPR.

May 2, 1923 — St. Paul, Minn.: One death and five injured, besides property damage was the toll of a severe electrical storm here Tuesday.

May 2, 1943 — Washington: President Roosevelt today ordered a government take-over of coal mines with military protection if necessary and called striking miners to return to work "immediately and work for their government."

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA—"I think," a deputy minister said to his new minister last week, "that you ought to speak to the people in your office. They're scared to death."

The minister's eyebrows climbed. "Why? What are they scared of?"

"They're scared of being fired," the deputy minister replied matter-of-factly.

The minister called in the office staff before the day ended and delivered a pep talk that in effect reassured all the stenographers and clerks that no axe was about to fall. Reports from other departments indicate that no wholesale firings are contemplated to provide jobs for mobs of Grits. The ministers are glad to have experienced staffs in these crucial days of decision and action. And indeed, any ministerial preoccupation with turning out Tories would be pretty close to a violation of a public pledge that the Pearson government would think big in facing up to the nation's problems.

Few persons are more important to a cabinet minister than the one he chooses as executive assistant. Many of the decisions made and actions taken in the minister's name originate with the "exec." He should be a person, one minister told me, "on whom I can lean."

The best "exec" in the Diefenbaker government was Mel Jack. Blooded at Queen's Park, he came to Ottawa in the '40s as Conservative leader Bracken's "exec"—although they called them private secretaries in those days. He became George Hees' "exec" when the Diefenbaker government came to power. Under Jack's tutelage, Hees, the "Toronto playboy," the "mental lightweight," made an impressive mark and won acceptance as the man to beat when John Diefenbaker retired. All this, of course, before the February fiasco in which Hees, without consulting Jack, went for broke and broke only himself.

Three Liberal ministers sought Jack's services as executive assistant. "If he could do that for Hees," one mused, "he could do it for me." Flattered, Jack declined. In such a politically sensitive job, Jack knew, he would be suspect by many Grits, and could well be more of an embarrassment than a help to a Liberal minister.

The salary of an exec is $9,000 a year. That's much less than the job's demands and responsibilities warrant, but that's government: niggardly on salaries, profligate on much else. George Hees dipped into his own privy purse to keep Mel Jack, but most ministers are not millionaires. One of the "new boys" has another ideal exec in view—but the man has just been offered $18,000 in the States. He would come to Ottawa for $12,000. The minister's most pressing problem is where to find that extra $3,000 a year.

Like old soldiers, old execs fade away—often into the obscurity of equal-status civil service jobs to which they have a statutory entitlement. But two of the Tory execs, persons whose services had been as much to the Tory party as to their ministers, snuggled into $11,000 civil service jobs after the election. They are due for quick demotion.

The former ministers' private secretaries, usually women, have no such job guarantee. Last week in a gesture of political magnanimity the Pearson government offered them all permanent appointments on the Commons staff at $100 a week.

Shooting Off the Record

WASHINGTON (UPI)—One of the nice things about being an armchair strategist is that you can plan the invasion of an entire continent without having to fire a single shot.

Among the sandbox warriors in Congress, the name of Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D-Penn.) stands near the top. And small wonder.

Without leaving his seat on the House defence appropriations subcommittee, Flood recently mapped out a grand design for the conquest of Communist China. As you can see, Flood thinks big.

Most of the other armchair strategists in Congress have been occupying themselves with nothing more ambitious than the conquest of Cuba.

Flood offered his battle plans, free of charge, to Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. Unfortunately, however, I am unable to tell you what Taylor's reaction was.

The printed transcript of the hearing leaves some large gaps in the discussion, largely because of Taylor's reluctance to discuss the subject of publication.

But this much I can tell you: When Flood is planning a military manoeuvre, he makes Hannibal with all of his elephants look like a piker.

The Flood plan for the conquest of Red China is so breathtakingly simple it's a wonder someone hadn't thought of it before.

The first half of the plan calls for Nationalist Chinese agents to infiltrate the mainland and line up support for an invasion south of the Yangtze River.

The second half calls for Russia to assist in this venture by moving her troops into Chinese-held territory in the north.

"Does it intrigue you at all?" asked Flood.

"Off the record," said Taylor.

Flood said that "Moscow is not going to start a thermonuclear war for Peking."

"Off the record," said Taylor.

Rather, Flood said, he was convinced that Russia was only interested in protecting her own borders and that "nobody, but nobody," would help the Red Chinese.

"Off the record," said Taylor.

The discussion continued in this vein for quite some time, with Flood elaborating on his strategy and Taylor responding off the record. That made it difficult to read between the lines.

I gather, however, that Taylor's enthusiasm was somewhat bounded, for Flood ended his presentation on what appeared to be a lame note.

"Nobody else will talk about these things but me around here, and so it just enlivens an afternoon, perhaps," Flood said.

"Off the record," said Taylor.

North Saanich Show Saturday

The North Saanich Garden Club will be putting on a spring flower show this Saturday which has all the earmarks of being rated as one of the best of its kind in Southern B.C.

While the 20 classes devoted to named specimens in narcissi (narcissus) may not be filled to capacity due to the early season, the same number of tulip classes should be a heart-warming sight.

The various types of tulips are too seldom seen in average gardens, yet they require the same care as the more universally grown Darwin type. The fact that all these exhibits must be named will be appreciated by visitors to the show.

Other spring flowers to be displayed are several species of primula, and the handsome though seldom seen ranunculus and anemones.

The North Saanich Club has always enforced its show rule that protected wild flowers shall not be included in any exhibit.

On Saturday this week, the show will be held at the Sanscha-

Hall in Sidney, and will be open from 2:30 to 9 p.m.

For the same afternoon, the tour of Saanich Peninsula gardens will spell finis for the Spring Garden Festival.

It would make a memorable day's outing to include these two events. A refreshment stop is scheduled at the Experimental Farm, Saanichton, arranged by the St. Andrew's Guild of Sidney.

The flower show could be seen after the tour of the gardens is completed.

Entries for the flower show may be phoned in to Mrs. E. H. Nash at GR 5-2815 not later than 6 p.m. Friday.

KEEP GERMANY IN CHECK

Political Objectives Key to NATO A-Force

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the underlying reasons seen here for a NATO nuclear force is to prevent West Germany from embarking on development of its own nuclear strike group.

The new Liberal government is said to feel committed to supporting creation of such a force for this and other reasons, although it does not look on it as a foolproof safeguard against an independent German nuclear arm.

In 1954, when the proposed European Defence Community collapsed, Prime Minister Pearson, then external affairs minister, was one of the first to suggest that West Germany be taken into NATO.

One of the unstated reasons then was that Canada feared the consequences of any re-emergence of Germany as an independent power in the centre of Europe. The same view still applies here in regard to the nuclear question.

No official here regards a NATO nuclear force as militarily worthwhile. Canada would prefer to have the U.S. retain, under its sole control, the West's nuclear striking power.

SEE ADVANTAGES

But political advantages are foreseen: advancement of the Atlantic community concept as opposed to President de Gaulle's Europeanism; a larger voice for European NATO countries in nuclear control; and the firmer binding of West Germany to the North Atlantic alliance.

The NATO ministerial meeting here May 22-24 is expected to take a small step toward creation of a genuine NATO nuclear force by approving an inter-allied combination of nuclear fighting groups already in being.

This combination would bring together, under U.S. control, some American Polaris missile submarines, RAF Bomber Command, and tactical air groups in Europe including Canada's eight-squadron air division.

Officials here say about the only advantage in such a force would be co-ordinated assignment of targets.

This is a long way from the "close and flexible political control that meets the needs of all NATO countries," which President Kennedy proposed in his speech to the Canadian Parliament May 17, 1961.

In that speech, the president offered to commit five Polaris submarines to NATO "subject to any agreed NATO guidelines on their control and use" and suggested creation of a shipborne NATO nuclear force "truly multilateral in ownership and control."

The NATO meeting is expected to mull this over for the fifth time without reaching any decisions on NATO nuclear control.

Historically, Canada has never fought independently. In the first and second world wars and in Korea, Canadian troops fought under British or American generalship. And in 1950, Canada committed an air division, army brigade and navy flotilla to NATO command. In a sense, Canada is already a nuclear force.

S. Africa Whites Decline

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—The percentage of white people in South Africa is steadily decreasing, says a report in the South African Medical Journal.

It says that by 1980, the percentage of whites may drop to 17.8 unless there is large-scale immigration.

Latest figures give a white population of 3,667,000, compared with the non-white total of 12,773,000. Between 1904 and 1951, the white percentage fell slightly from 21.6 to 20.9 per cent.

The main reason given for the decline of the ratio of whites in the population is that the non-whites are younger and more fertile as a whole.

The survey was made by the department of medicine at the University of Witwatersrand here.

There has been only a moderate natural increase among whites and immigration has been negligible since 1911, while emigration has been fairly steady.

The survey made by research assistant David Glajchen used some data from early medical sources, but much of it was based on the 1960 census, which also showed that there are about 10,000 more white women than men in South Africa.

Westcoast Looks to Other Markets

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Rejection by the U.S. Federal Power Commission of the Rock Creek pipeline linking west Texas and Rocky Mountain gas producing areas with California has been a disappointment to Westcoast Transmission Ltd.

However, a senior official of Westcoast said that the growth of other markets for B.C. gas more than offset possible market areas affected by the FPC ruling.

The $151 million Rock Springs line, proposed by El Paso Natural Gas Co. and Colorado Interstate Gas Co., would not have been supplied directly with B.C. gas via Westcoast. But it was expected that by creating a vacuum situation it would have strengthened demand for B.C. gas in surrounding areas.

When the line was first proposed, El Paso purchased large amounts of gas from Rocky Mountain states producers on a take or pay basis and this surplus created a "gate" against southward movement of gas from this province.

However, the situation has changed considerably in the five years since the line was first proposed.

"Because of the rapid growth of the Pacific Northwest market, Westcoast Transmission expansion plans will not be affected by rejection of the Rock Springs project," D. P. McDonald, senior vice-president of Westcoast said.

"For example, last year the FPC authorized a gas pipeline service into the Reno, Nevada, area and late last month an extension into northwest Oregon.

"In addition, a further extension is underway in Washington to the Olympic Peninsula.

"All these developments are within the Westcoast Transmission supply area," Mr. McDonald said.

While there is no official word on the size of the market in these new areas, it is estimated they would require another 100 million cubic feet daily of B.C. gas.

Judging from reports of the drilling season in the northeast B.C. area, now coming to a close, expansion of both domestic and export markets will be very welcome.

According to Oil in Canada magazine, the season "has to rate as one of the best ever" in the Fort Nelson area.

No less than eight new natural gas discovery wells were indicated in the region during the winter season with six believed to be major Slave Point strikes and the other two rumored Elk Point discoveries.

Six of the wells were drilled by Western Natural Gas Co. Inc., subsidiary of Pacific Petroleum Ltd. with the other two going to Imperial Oil Ltd. and Standard Oil Co. of B.C.

All eight wells are being kept "tight" by the operators but it was learned that one drilled by Western Natural Gas about 50 miles north of Ketchikan had absolute open flow potential of 28.8 million cubic feet daily.

Oil in Canada estimates that the discoveries in this small area alone have added at least one trillion cubic feet to B.C.'s proved gas reserves, last officially estimated by the government 10 months ago at 6.1 trillion cubic feet.

Submissions Sought On Minimum Pay Rate

The Board of Industrial Relations will receive submissions in five industries with a view to setting new minimum wages in May and June.

The first are automotive repair and gasoline service station, and office occupation, in which further written submissions from interested parties are receivable up to May 24.

Hearings have already been held in these industries.

The board will hear representations on new wage minimums in the laundry, cleaning and dyeing industries at 10 a.m., Tuesday, May 28.

TWO ON JUNE 11

Two hearings are set for June 11, the first at 10 a.m. for the grass dehydration industry, the second at 2 p.m. for the Christmas tree industry.

All hearings will be in the board's Vancouver offices at 411 Dunsmuir, but written submissions are invited at any previous time, and may be sent to the chairman, W. H. Sands, at the Legislative Buildings.

Trades Act Changes 'Gradual'

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson has assured Victoria Labor Council that changes to Tradesmen's Qualification and Apprenticeship Act will be made on a gradual basis after consultation with labor and management representatives.

The council protested recently that the minister will have powers under the new act formerly held by trade unions in setting up tradesmen's qualifications and certification of tradesmen.

Mr. Peterson said the policy of consultation with trades representatives will continue.

Council secretary A. W. Toone said this is camouflage for the fact that trades in future will be designated by the minister or his department, with consultation following, and no guarantee that such advice will be accepted.

Prior consultation, with labor as a whole represented—not just particular trades—is the desirable situation, Mr. Toone said.

Consolidated agreed to buy 60,000 shares and received options up to 1965 on another 160,000 at a higher price. The company is working on Mount Washington's Vancouver Island property near Courtenay.

Authors' President Favors Subsidies

Dr. Helen Creighton, national president of the 900-member Canadian Authors Association, believes promising Canadian writers should be subsidized.

She does not agree with opponents of subsidies who say aspiring writers should be left to fight their own battles in the highly competitive literary market.

"I believe authors write better and more deeply when they are relieved of immediate financial care and anxiety. And many worthwhile books would not be written at all if their creators had to depend on them for a living."

Serving a two-year term as president of the CAA, Dr. Creighton addressed a special meeting of the Victoria and Islands branch Wednesday night.

She is a recognized author.

Dr. Creighton has also produced a collection of Maritime Folk Songs (1961) and her new book, "Gaelic Songs in Nova Scotia," will be published soon by the National Museum of Canada in Ottawa.

"The difference between this new work and my earlier books is that I do not get paid for it," she laughed.

Many of the Maritime folk songs printed in Dr. Creighton's books were recorded on tape machines and dictaphones.

Dr. Creighton is the first woman president of the CAA since Madge Macbeth held office in the 1940s. She says it is growing steadily in strength and influence and has more poets among its members than any other kind of writer.

"I am happy that most successful Canadian writers now belong to our association," she said. "They are a stimulus and inspiration to aspiring members."

In Victoria, Dr. Creighton was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. S. Soulsby, 2150 Granite

Citrus Losses High

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—The mid-winter freeze killed 14,000,000 citrus trees and it will take at least six years to replace them, says Florida Citrus Mutual. As a result, the co-operative said Wednesday, Florida's citrus crop next year will be about one-third smaller than this year's harvest.

PWA Strike Settled, Firm Claims

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dick Laidman, president of Pacific Western Airlines, said Wednesday a two-year agreement has been reached with most of the striking traffic employees and that striking stewardesses have all been replaced.

He said any employees who have not yet returned to work will have to accept "laid-off status," subject to recall as jobs become available.

"There is a good possibility that if business continues to improve, the majority of the traffic employees still on strike will be back at work within three months," he said.

William Schaeffer, vice-president of the Traffic Employees Association declared the firm's stand on rehiring strikers is "straight union-busting."

The wage settlement, along the lines of a conciliation award, provides a $15-a-month increase retroactive to last July and a similar raise next July.

Stewardesses who also struck Feb. 25, were dismissed for "conduct unbecoming company employees in uniform," but a spokesman for the Canadian Airline Flight Attendants Association said they were continuing the strike.

From 1951 to 1961 Calgary, now Canada's ninth city with 279,062, nearly doubled its population.

AGES TAKES TOLL—BUT STILL CHAMPAGNE

After 62 Turbulent Years Churchill Quits Commons

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—It was on a dull February day in 1901 that Winston Churchill, 25, made his maiden speech before the house of commons.

The member whom the Conservative followed on that day was a Liberal, described by Churchill as a "rising young Welshman" — David Lloyd George.

The Boer War was the topic of the day—Churchill had won fame in that conflict—and no one could guess that these two men were destined to lead their country in far more terrible struggles.

Sir Winston, 58, announced Wednesday he will not contest another election because of the weight of years and an injury he suffered in a fall in 1962.

Self-styled "child of the House of Commons," Sir Winston said in a letter to his Woodford constituents: "I need not tell you with what sadness I take this step."

It was a practical step. Sir Winston has spoken in the Commons only once—a 14-word acknowledgment of congratulations on his 55th birthday—since he resigned as prime minister in April, 1955.

Churchill's long years in parliament prepared him for two grand climaxes—the two world wars against Germany. In the second he rose to his most shining hour.

HAS RECOVERED

Churchill seems to have recovered from his accident last July when he fell while vacationing in the south of France but he has been greatly enfeebled.

Wednesday night he sipped champagne at the annual banquet of the Royal Academy in London.

The former prime minister served under six British monarchs—Queen Victoria, King Edward VII, George V, Edward VIII, George VI and Queen Elizabeth II.

Often the rebel, Churchill changed parties a few times and held practically every major ministerial office excepting that of foreign secretary. He settled down as a Conservative in the 1930s but was credited with many with being the inspiration for the Beveridge plan drafted during the heat of the Second World War that was a forerunner to Britain becoming a welfare state.

During the intervals between cabinet jobs, Churchill served as a soldier, was a prolific writer and painted well enough to give a one-man exhibition.

LIVED WITH GUSTO

He has lived—even in his declining years—always with gusto. His enjoyment of brandy and good cigars are legendary.

Churchill's words were being applied to himself today as he was lauded once again not only for his inspirational leadership in war but the traits—and faults—that evoked such deep affection.

Humor was a forte.

About one member who switched allegiance from the Conservative party to Labor, Churchill growled: "There goes history's only example of a rat swimming to a sinking ship."

Churchill suffered five defeats in the 20 elections he contested. Perhaps one of the kindest cuts came to the brandy-appreciating Churchill when Neddy Scrymgeour, a prohibitionist on an independent ticket, beat him in 1922. Churchill had undergone an appendicitis operation during the campaign.

He later reported:

"In the twinkling of an eye I found myself without an office, without a seat, without a party, and without an appendix."

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Fanciers of the what's-going-on school of literature must be having a wonderful time these days reading the daily newspaper installments of that gripping serial called "Prelude to the Kentucky Derby."

There have been stories of horses that like mud and others who get seasick just thinking of rain; there has been talk that Candy Spots is invincible and that he can be swallowed; that Never Bend is quick and No Robbery is a larcenist though a trifle kooky.

I have been accumulating these stories and others in order to reach a carefully thought-out decision. After perusing a mountain of paper on my desk my firm conviction is that the next time there is a paper drive I'm going to be ruddy rich.

Seriously, the hour has arrived to sort out the horses from the manes and tails in the Derby. It goes Saturday at Churchill Downs and if a mistake is made here something else may be invited to go early Monday.

Four years ago y'r operator lifted thousands of dollars from the brink of bankruptcy by putting the finger on Tony Lee. It was suggested that Tony was such a good thing a fellow could sell his wife and bet the bundle. When Tony prevailed, one punter called to say "Gracias." Asked how much he won, he replied: "Enough. But the important thing is that I took your advice about my wife. And when she left my mother-in-law took it on the lam too."

Ridan . . . That Was Different Story

Carry Back was the choice in 1961. More people got fat on him, buying yachts, Cadillacs and the like. Some did so well they could even afford to buy meat. Last year it was Ridan. He ran a beautiful, energetic third and the bourgeois punters ran up and down my spine. Especially that fellow who had bet on Tony Lee.

He called to say that not only had he lost the rent money "but my wife and mother-in-law picked that day to come home." Some days you just can't win.

This year the Louisville chariot race poses many problems. There are horses who can singe clocks like Never Bend and No Robbery. Over a mile and an eighth, however, the gas tank can get empty in a hurry.

Bonjour and Candy Spots and Royal Tower tend to lurk behind the windburners, waiting for an opportunity to scamper past when they falter.

Candy Spots also can come from deep left field if the strategy calls. On My Honor does the same thing but with him it's not a matter of choice. He's just flat-footed out of the gate.

There have been brilliant workouts and props which wouldn't do credit to an arthritic goat. Rajah Noor, considered Derby potential, Monday needed one minute 15 seconds to go six furlongs. Lin Howard, his owner, remarked: "Heck, the pony outbreaks him." Later Mr. Howard grinned and said: "I wish the pony were eligible for the Derby."

Only Grade 'A' Goods In This Derby

For students of breeding the Derby offers only Grade A goods. There are two sons of Swaps (No Robbery and Chateaugay); a son of the imported and deceased Nigromante (Candy Spots); a Prince Khaled (Bonjour); a Revoked (Grey Pet); an Eiffel Tower (Royal Tower); and, a Nasrullah (Never Bend). Not a no-good poppa in the lot.

Since the field will be small and select, post position shouldn't have much to do with the outcome. With Grey Pet, Chateaugay, Royal Tower and Rajah Noor (if he runs) very little will help unless they get a head start.

On My Honor is an enigma. At Santa Anita he wasn't considered socially acceptable to mingle with the elite. Then he went to Bay Meadows where they had a monsoon and he came from 24 lengths off the pace to win. He is owned by the Ambush Stable which may be an omen.

Bonjour is Francois for "Good Day." He pushed Candy Spots to a nose decision at Santa Anita but that day his nose was too short. He'll need a longer beak and some new spark plugs Saturday if he is to be heard from.

No Robbery is the property of Mrs. Joan Whitney Payson, a livestock lover who also operates the New York Mets of the National League. The colt hits harder than the Mets, runs better than the Mets and doesn't pour or talk back.

He has never been beaten, which is more than you can say for Mi x Payson's other employees, but until he won the Wood Memorial two weeks ago he hadn't met much either. No Robbery has the speed of a pickpocket but tends to ogle things — people, tractors, flagpoles, grass, the tote board — while running. After the Wood, jockey John Rotz said, "He must have seen everything there was to see at Aqueduct."

And That Brings Us to Candy Spots

When they open his stall door look for him to scat — and to be accompanied by Never Bend. This colt, handsome and headstrong, prefers to lead his colleagues and usually does. He won $472,000 as a baby and not long ago scalloped a prep field at six furlongs by 15 lengths.

No Robbery and Never Bend could kill off the opposition — if they don't gas each other first.

That brings us to Candy Spots. He is the largest colt in the race at 16 hands, two inches and 1,100 pounds. He is also the best — on the record. Seven starts. Seven wins. He has a long white stripe down the middle of his face and on his back and hind legs there is a heater-skelter collection of large white and small black spots.

In the Santa Anita Derby he was knocked sideways in that tragic five-horse spill yet methodically and convincingly pranced home first. He is owned by Rex Ellsworth, whose horses last year earned purses totalling $1,154,454 — more than any stable in America. He will be ridden, as always, by Bill Shoemaker who shouldn't hurt him much.

Last summer at Hollywood a clocker caught him going an eighth in 10 seconds flat after working a half mile in 50 seconds. Said the clocker after his eyeballs had been pushed back in place: "If a horse can accelerate like that nobody can live with him."

Aw right, you guessed it, Candy Spots.

Bisons Take Playoff Title

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP-AP) — Buffalo Bisons won the Eastern Division championship, made a clean sweep of league titles by winning the Calder Cup.

A record Buffalo hockey crowd of 11,536 made the rafters ring throughout the game, and flowed out on the ice at the end. The old record attendance here was 11,008.

McNeill, Severson Sparkle As Rocks Start With Win

Shamrocks 11, Nanaimo 10

By DOUG FEDEEN

Jim McNeill has finally acquired the delicate touch and today that looks like happy news for Victoria Shamrocks.

At least, big Jim made the light touch the right touch as the Rocks opened their new Inter-City Lacrosse League campaign Wednesday night at the Memorial Arena.

He made it pay off for four goals and the Irish needed every one of them as they barely made it to the wire ahead of a hard-running Nanaimo club in an 11-10 squeaker before almost 2,000 fans.

McNeill, rookie of the year in 1959 when he collected 40 goals, has always packed a blazing shot. His side-wheeling sizzlers bruised goalies, battered nets and produced some spectacular goals. They also had a habit of sailing wide of the target.

"I've always tried to flog the ball through the goalies," said McNeill, "but I always had a lot of misses. This year Whitey (Severson) told me to take a look on close-in shots, pick a spot and use a sort of flip shot. He got me trying accuracy instead of power. It sure worked tonight."

Two of McNeill's four tallies were scored while the Shamrocks had a manpower advantage. The last one, coming at 10:22 of the fourth quarter while Nanaimo's Al Matson was serving a penalty for a wraparound infraction proved to be the winner.

It gave Victoria a 10-8 lead, which barely proved to be enough. Nanaimo came back for goals by Larry Biggs and Gord Laylor to trail by one goal with two minutes remaining.

Don Had Jitters In Final Minute

Shamrocks then proceeded to scare the bejabbers out of coach Don Ashbee as they declined to protect the skinny lead by working to control the ball in the closing exchanges. They fired a couple of unnecessary shots and the Coalstowners grabbed the initiative. Nanaimo had a few fine chances to tie it up and the last one possibly went awry only because Tom Collett got back for a great defensive play for the Rocks.

Coach Arnie Dugan's Nanaimo crew grabbed some thunder away from the Shamrocks, who had planned to outrun and outthrust their rivals. Dugan's lads did the most running and the best ball-hawking in the first two periods. Taking advantage of a Victoria defence that was giving goalie Fred Wooster uncertain protection, they grabbed a 6-3 lead in the first half.

Whitey Practices What He Preaches

Big man for Nanaimo was Terry Davis, the little sniper who can almost thread a needle with his shots. Davis dodged in for four goals, three on power plays, and added an assist. Matching his five-point total was Larry Clarkson, with a five-assist effort.

Biggs and Ferguson each chipped in with two goals. Laylor and Matson each fired one.

Shamrocks, who play a re-

The Rocks finally found their running legs in the third quarter, threw up a better defence in front of Barry Forbes, who had taken over from Wooster, and blazed into a 9-7 lead.

Veteran Whitey Severson and Nanaimo's burly John Ferguson traded fourth-quarter goals before McNeill cashed in the winning tally.

Severson proved to be a man who practices what he preaches. Whitey also flashed the delicate touch and emerged as the night's top point-getter. Severson flipped three scoring shots and earned three assists to make it a six-point evening. McNeill added an assist to his four goals to finish with five points.

Completing the Shamrock scoring were Ron Jay, with two goals, Ashbee and Keith Lawrence.

SELKE SAYS:

Still Too Good To Quit Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Dickie Moore, twice National Hockey League scoring champion and all-star left wing, said Wednesday he is retiring from the game.

One of the top performers during Montreal Canadiens' record five-year grip on the Stanley Cup, Moore said he told general manager Frank Selke of his decision after he was informed he was up for trade.

Selke said he hopes Moore, who is 32, will reconsider his decision before next season but he will not "quarrel" with it.

"Dickie is still far too good a player to retire from hockey," Selke said "no specific trade has been made or suggested but it has been made clear that some players could be traded and he (Moore) could have been one of them."

Moore reached the peak of his 12-season NHL career in the 1958-59 season when, with a mighty assist from centre Jean Beliveau, he scored a record 96 points and won his second consecutive scoring title.

TO STAY IN MONTREAL

He said Wednesday: "My future is in Montreal. I have no wish to play anywhere else."

"It's something I've discussed with my family for some time and the only answer is retirement."

He winds up his NHL career with regular-season totals of 254 goals and 340 assists for 594 points. His 254 goals placed him fifth among all-time scorers still active at the end of the 1962-63 season.

MCC DECIDES . . .

No More Gentlemen at Wicket

LONDON (AP) — Gentlemen no longer are gentlemen in the most gentlemanly of all English sports — cricket.

Reason: The Marylebone Cricket Club, ruling body of the game in England, has scrapped the word amateurs and decided "everybody in our game now will be cricketers."

The revolution began April 27 at the start of a new cricket season. All of the cricketers now can be officially and legally paid.

TERRY DIDN'T MISS MANY

Ball nestled in stick, Nanaimo's Terry Davis reaches high and takes aim at Victoria goal during Inter-City Lacrosse game at Memorial Arena. Sharp-shooting Terry didn't click on this one, but he didn't miss many other chances, collecting four goals as Nanaimo lost 11-10 battle to Shamrocks.

Canada Grabbing Track Titles For First Time in PA Games

SAO PAULO, Brazil (CP-AP) — Don Bertois, Sig Ohlemann and Bill Gairdner basked in the limelight in Canada's Pan-American Games camp today, polishing a gold and two silver medals they added to their country's growing list in track and field.

Bertois, a 23-year-old agriculturalist from Rossland, B.C., gave Canada its third gold medal in the big track and field program here, winning the 800-metre run Wednesday in the Games-record time of one minute, 48.3 seconds.

Ohlemann, German-born, 25-year-old from Vancouver, followed Bertois across the finish line to win the 800-metre silver.

Gairdner, 22-year-old from Thornhill, Ont., added another silver with a Canadian-record-breaking performance in the 10-event decathlon, one of the toughest events on the program.

Gymnasts added a silver and a bronze medal to the over-all Canadian team total Wednesday. The Canadians finished second to the U.S. in women's team competition while 16-year-old Gail Daley of Saskatoon picked up a bronze in the individual standing although she finished behind three U.S. girls.

The U.S. women's team scored 383.18 points to win, Canada got 376.67 and Cuba took third with 345.87. Doris G. Fuchs won the individual crown with 77.21 points and Dale Mc-Clements and Kathleen Corrigan tied for second with 77.01 and each received a silver medal. Miss Daley had 76.60.

Brazilian Cagers Nip Nationals

Canadian competitors did not fare as well on other fronts Wednesday.

Doug Kyle, veteran distance runner from Calgary, finished fifth in the 10,000 metres, won by Irish-born Peter McCordle of New York, who with decathlon winner John David Martin and women's 200-metre sprint winner Vivian Brown salvaged some of the U.S. track lustre here.

U.S. competitors were beaten in the men's 200 metres and 400-metre hurdles in addition to the 800.

Lethbridge, Alta., Nationals suffered a heart-breaking 84-80 loss to Brazil in the men's basketball tournament — the fourth loss in five starts for Lethbridge, which turned in its best performance so far in Wednesday night's thriller. The Canadians led by two points over the world-champion Brazilians with six minutes left but couldn't hold the advantage.

Vancouver Maids, the women's basketball entry, took their fifth straight loss when the U.S. whipped them 68-21 and the Canadian water polo team's record went to 1-6 when Brazil won 7-2. Ben Simo of Montreal finished seventh in the men's sabre fencing final.

But the performances of Bertois, Ohlemann and Gairdner brought glee to the Canadian camp.

IT WAS NICE OF GUS — BUT EDDIE HAD ONE

UNION CITY, N.J. (AP) — Former light-heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich sticks strictly to the rules when he referees a fight. So when Eddie Jones rapped Willie Jones in the chop-ers in a preliminary bout here Wednesday night and Willie's mouthpiece flew out, Gus promptly stepped in.

He waved the fighters apart, picked up the mouthpiece, carefully took it to the corner to be cleaned, and marched back to the fighters.

He took Jones' arm solicitously, and put the mouthpiece in his mouth.

Only one trouble. He gave it to Eddie Jones, who hardly had room for two.

Seals Harpooned By Old Al Millar

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Al Millar and the other old men of the Seattle Totems just get better and better.

Experience has made them steady, money has made them professionals, and the influence of both is showing in their Western Hockey League final series.

Totems delivered victory No. 3 in the best-of-seven series Wednesday night, defeating San Francisco Seals 3-1 to make tonight's fifth game here the last one they need to win for the Lester Patrick trophy.

The scent of playoff money has made 33-year-old goaltender Al Millar perhaps the most important man on the Seals.

'Seabiscuit' Bo Delays Trip to Glue Factory

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bo (Seabiscuit) Belinsky, who admits he's on the way to the glue factory if he fails to get off to a quick start, has finally come up a winner.

The Los Angeles left-hander finished what he started for the first time this season Wednesday night, limiting the New York Yankees to four hits while George Thomas hit a grand slam homer that gave the Angels a 5-3 victory over the world champions.

Belinsky, fined and sued so often in his short major league career he may wind up pitching for nothing, almost wound up pitching for Kansas City after the 1962 season. But an under-the-table deal that would have sent Bo to the A's was vetoed by Commissioner Ford Frick.

When Belinsky signed his contract this season, he admitted:

"I get the picture. If I win, they keep me. If I lose, they throw me out. It's a sap who doesn't know where he stands." So with an 0-3 record, Belinsky strode out to the mound against the Yankees and pitched his no-hitter against Baltimore last May 5, 361 days ago.

TROUBLE ONCE

He allowed the Yankees' first hit when Roger Maris singled with one out in the fifth and ran into serious trouble once in the ninth when the Yankees scored their third run on a walk and singles by Harry Bright and Tony Kubek.

Belinsky, nicknamed Seabiscuit by Manager Bill Rigney because of his prancing running style and the fact he "has a different way of doing everything," then avoided a photo-finish by getting Jack Reed to ground out for the final out with two on.

Orlando Pena, Tom Cheney and Ray Herbert also turned in top pitching performances. Pena's four-hit pitching and a 15-hit Kansas City attack subdued Cleveland 11-3 and kept the A's in first place.

Cheney struck out 12 and allowed only seven hits as Washington downed Detroit 4-1 while Herbert started Chicago off to a doubleheader sweep over Baltimore with a 7-0 four-hit job. The White Sox took the nightcap 6-4. Boston walloped Minnesota 14-5 to round out the schedule.

Thomas took care of Yankee starter Ralph Terry, now 3-2 in the first inning when he tagged his grand slam following singles by Billy Moran, Lee Thomas and Leon Wagner. Belinsky took it from there before a crowd of 36,937.

SANFORD SHARP

Jack Sanford, who had trouble finishing games all through winning 24 for San Francisco Giants last year in the National League, hurled his third complete game and fourth victory of the young season Thursday.

Sanford tossed a seven-hitter at Pittsburgh as the Giants won 5-1 to snap a four-game Pirate victory skid.

Canadians Clinch Top Soccer Spot

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canadians clinched the Pacific Coast soccer championship Wednesday night, but they did it the hard way.

Canadians scratched out an uneasy 1-0 win over the sixth-place Vancouver Pils, before a small crowd of 300 fans, to put themselves out of reach of the second-place Vancouver Firefighters. Each of the two leading teams has one game left but Canadians now hold a three-point edge.

The victory was some revenge for the Canadians, who were knocked out of the Province Cup for the B.C. soccer championship by Pils 10 days ago.

Canadians will now represent the Pacific Coast League in the Pacific International championship in Los Angeles at the end of May.

'FOOLISH TO CONTINUE'

Moss Decides To End Career

LONDON (AP)—Stirling Moss, 33-year-old British car racing ace, announced his retirement Wednesday because "to continue racing would be dangerous for myself and for others."

Moss, long a contender for the world championship but never a winner, said he reached his decision while he was roaring around the empty Goodwood track, where he was severely injured in a crash a year ago.

He was unconscious for weeks after the crash. He suffered a serious brain injury and in the last few months has undergone surgery twice to cure defects in his vision resulting from the crash.

Moss said he reached speeds of 145 miles per hour during the 45 minutes he spent driving his 2½-litre sports car around the Goodwood track Wednesday.

LOST DEXTERITY

"I came to the conclusion while driving that it would be foolish to continue because I have lost a certain amount of dexterity," he said. "My reactions are down a little."

Albions Start Against Alcos

Albions start out Saturday in defence of the league title they won in the last season in the Victoria and District Cricket Association, meeting Alcos at Windsor Park.

Two other league matches are scheduled this weekend.

Incogs will be at Nanaimo for a Saturday game and Five C's host Cowichan, Sunday, at Beacon Hill.

The games are slated to start at 2 p.m.

Park Plan May Mean Row

A federal proposal to extend Garibaldi Park westward to the coast is expected to meet strong opposition from B.C. logging interests.

Provincial forestry department spokesmen said a giant tree farm licence area and a huge public working circle lie between the park and the coast north of Vancouver.

The proposal to extend the park for seaside development along the shores of Jervis Inlet was made by Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing Tuesday.

He told an Ottawa press conference that he is ready to meet with B.C. Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. Westwood on the matter of making the 600,000-acre park one of the finest natural playgrounds in Canada.

WILLING TO SPEND

Mr. Laing said earlier the federal government is willing to spend up to $10 million on the project.

While Mr. Laing did not explain the path any western extension of the park would follow, forestry officials were concerned with any plan which might curtail industrial use of the area.

They said it includes the 313,000-acre Squamish tree farm operated by Empire Mills which has built a sawmill complex at Squamish on the basis of sustained yield cutting in perpetuity.

WORK AVAILABLE

And it contains a 325,000-acre public working circle which provides work for 57 private operators and hundreds of their employees at this time.

During recent legislative forestry committee hearings, consideration was given to augmenting the public working circle by cutting park fringe area timber, in the interest of continued employment.

Recreation Minister Westwood said in Vancouver that the offer of federal assistance in the development of the park was "good news." He said it was doubtful he could meet Mr. Laing this week but he would be willing to attend Ottawa discussions at an early date.

CONCRETE PROPOSALS

"We wouldn't turn over Garibaldi without concrete proposals for immediate development," he said.

He added, "If there is some specific undertaking that the federal government proposes to spend X number of dollars within a specific time, then that would have quite an influence on our thinking."

Premier Bennett said later, "we would be willing to co-operate. There is no reason why Ottawa shouldn't contribute. But as far as giving away our natural resources, the answer is 'No'. You can never tell what's in these hills."

A large proportion of the 3,000 hospitals in Britain's National Health service were built in the 19th century.

GRANT DISCRIMINATES, LABOR COUNCIL TOLD

The provincial homeowner grant is "a political gag," Victoria Labor Council delegate Charles Peck said Wednesday night.

Council endorsed his motion that the legislative committee investigate all aspects of the $70 grant to resident owners of property in B.C.

He called it discriminatory.

"A man who is not advanced enough to be able to own his own home gets nothing."

"We should know what these gimmicks mean to the working people," he said.

AMONG MINERS

WCB Launches Drive To Curb Lung Cancer

VANCOUVER, (CP) — The B.C. Workmen's Compensation Board says it has launched an all-out campaign to reduce the causes of lung disease among miners.

The board's 1962 annual report, released Tuesday, says silicosis and pneumoconiosis are now being investigated by means of dust and ventilation surveys. Miners' unions have said the two diseases cripple hundreds of the province's miners each year.

The report says other atmospheric tests are being conducted to discover and eliminate the harmful effects of gases such as carbon monoxide and nitrogen dioxide. Recommendations were made for improvements in control devices when comparatively high dust or gas concentrations were found.

The report said 204 B.C. workers were killed in industrial accidents last year, compared with an average of 237 in the last decade. Work injuries during the year totalled 76,617.

Compensation to injured workers and widows or other beneficiaries reached an all-time high of $21,500,000.

Edmonton Pastor Will Take Over At First United

New minister of First United Church, Victoria, is Rev. Robert J. D. Morris, M.A., B.D., of Edmonton. He succeeds Rev. A. I. Higgins who left here for Toronto last fall.

Mr. Morris' appointment was approved by the Victoria Presbytery meeting in Sidney Tuesday evening.

His appointment is effective July 1, but he will take part in a two-month preaching mission in Japan before coming here in September.

Canada exports wheat ... Canada imports Lemon Hart Rums

Canadian wheat is accepted as a standard all over the world because no one can match the combination of soil, climate, and experience that produces it. Rum, on the other hand, is not native to Canada. The best rums, like Lemon Hart, are distilled in the benign climate of the Caribbean ... then transported to England where they mature quietly in underground caverns where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two summer or winter, year in year out.

Obviously a good rum must be imported. And when Lemon Hart Rums reach Canada they are mature, well travelled rums, as distinguished in their way as Canadian wheat — and as well respected throughout the world.

Labor Delegates Demand Probe of Commissionaires

Charges against a "dictatorial" Corps of Commissionaires were made at Victoria Labor Council Wednesday with demands for an Industrial Relations Board probe and a move to organize members into a trade union.

Council vice-president E. T. Staley got delegates' support to ask the Board of Industrial Relations or minister of labor to investigate commissionaires working more than eight hours in one day or 44 hours in one week without overtime pay.

"I am told some work as high as 56 hours a week with no overtime. I don't think it's right. These men have no union organization to protect them," Mr. Staley said.

The men who spoke to him are employed by the federal government on security patrols, he said.

QUALIFIES
Mr. Staley said he had been assured by the labor department that the Corps of Commissionaires qualifies under Minimum Wage Order 32 (1960) for private patrolmen, which sets out a minimum rate of $1 an hour and the hours of work, with overtime provision.

Harry Anderson, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers' delegate, said the corps is run "as a dictatorship," even though there may be "some good union men among them."

"The organization is definitely run for a profit, and they compete with organized labor," Mr. Anderson said. "I believe the corps has become very dictatorial—like a military organization," Mr. Staley said. "These men are not military, they are civilians."

ASKED TO ORGANIZE
He moved—and the meeting approved—that the Canadian Labor Congress be asked to organize the corps into "a proper Canadian union" under C.L.C. charter.

Mr. Staley said when the corps was organized in England it was to assist ex-servicemen who had little or no pension.

"But it is an entirely different situation today. It has become a big hiring agency in this country," he said, with as many as 350 men employed in this area.

A lot of commissionaires are men with "pretty good pensions," he said.

They pay a $1 a month fee to belong to the corps and receive $1.60 an hour wages of the $1.70 an hour charged by the corps to employers, Mr. Staley said.

NO STATEMENT
Although the men are paid up members of the corps, they cannot get a statement to show how their money is spent, he was told.

Now have they a say in the election of their superiors, in protest of an unjust dismissal or grievance procedure, and they have no bargaining agent. "That is why they need a trade union," the vice-president said.

He said he knows men who have for years been afraid to come out into the open with their protests for fear of losing employment, but now two men have "been courageous enough to allow their names to be used in a legitimate way," such as in testifying at a hearing, he said.

Radiation Drugs

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—

The development of two chemical compounds that may reduce radiation dangers in space travel, nuclear war and cancer treatment were announced Wednesday by the University of Oklahoma Medical Center. A group of collaborating scientists reported that new synthetic steroids, resembling sex hormones, showed "a remarkable ability to protect laboratory animals against near-lethal amounts of radiation."

Go Ahead, Kiss Girl In a Draft

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, MAY 2, 1963—PAGE 17

Arthur Mayse

In our house as in everyone else's, Wednesday marked the start of May. We launched the new month at 7 a.m. daylight saving time, which still feels like 6 a.m. to us, with a sleepily-muttered "Swan!"

How and where this bit of tradition, superstition or whatever got its start, I haven't the least idea. But it's supposed to bring a lucky month, so we take no chances.

Most families, I suspect, indulge in at least one amiable gesture to the fates, even if it's only to drop a pinch of spilled salt over the shoulder.

If you have a statuette of Kwan Yin, Chinese goddess of mercy, you're supposed to touch the lotus-lady's porcelain hand daily. We go farther, and give her a flower to hold. We also hope for a dark man as our first visitor of the new year; and back when I could do so without the risk of potting some denizen of a Gordon Head that's become plumb cified, I used to salute a fresh January with three rifle shots.

All the above in defiance of Dr. Brock Chisholm, who strives to substitute the clear light of reason for our mumbo-jumbo folkways, and would probably take a stern view of such current junior-miss incantations as this:

First you count 99 red sport cars, see?

Then you watch for a woman in a purple dress, like.

Next you go looking for a man with a red beard, sort of.

After that, you're free to cast an eye on any boy who takes your fancy, and if you didn't miscount sport cars or settle for a purple coat instead of dress, or pick the wrong shade of beard, you've teased your future husband.

This can be the guy with the beard, even—if you like beards, and if some faster sport car counter hasn't put the hex on him first.

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, there's a letter that goes far toward explaining why, in hotter-blooded lands than ours, a favored slogan of placard-bearers and wall-scribblers is "Yankee go home!"

Dear Sirs: I have just finished reading your article on Canada. Now that is the end! How dare they take that attitude toward us?

The United States is in the position of the rich relative who has poorer relations living off his bounty. Sooner or later the poorer relations are bound to hold us in scorn and resent us. So they resent the fact that our capital invested in their country gives the investors too much say in the affairs of Canada?

Well, do they expect people to invest money and not have anything to say about that investment? Did anyone twist their arms to force them to accept that capital that they resent so much? I say they should look upon it as good fortune that when they didn't have the capital to develop their resources we did!

Mrs. William Coleman, Gettysburg, Pa.

To all of which, this poor Canadian relation suggests that room rent doesn't give a boarder the right to take over the house... and that fond though we are of our neighbors south, we'd love them better if they'd quit stamping on our toes!

Since I prefer to remember Mrs. Coleman's Gettysburg in a nobler context, let's move on to Victoria Music Festival.

A while ago I told you about the little cerebral palsy victim who likes to dance, and her Grade 2 classmates who insisted she compete in the festival with the rest of them.

"After you printed that," Mrs. Stella Kemp of 2086 Granite Road tells me, "we had several calls from people who felt it was all wrong to let a handicapped child reduce the group's chance of winning. But we had a lot more calls from ones who approved our decision."

Well, as you may have noticed, the Talmie dancers didn't place last, as they and their teachers had expected. They tied for first place, and drew special praise from the adjudicator for their lively, happy performance.

Then, to complete their triumph, they were chosen for Wednesday night's honor performance at Central Junior High, a distinction reserved for groups which particularly impressed the festival judges.

Mrs. Kemp and Mrs. Marjorie Sturgeon, Talmie's Grade 2 teachers, are properly pleased about this. So are the children whom they coached for the festival.

And happiest of all is the bright and eager youngster who wasn't left out.

By JOHN MIKA

City council today put up the money for a crackdown on crime.

The 100-member city police force will get three more men and three trained dogs this year.

It also will get a Breathalyzer for quick and accurate readings on the alcohol level in a suspect's system.

In addition, a special reserve fund of $25,000 will be set up by council on which the police commission can draw this year to implement a number of still-secret recommendations in the Archer report.

Council also was warned that a borrowing bylaw likely will be necessary to finance extensive renovations of the police station.

Introduction of trained dogs is expected to triple the efficiency of patrols through business areas at night.

Aldermen were told that a trained dog let loose in a store or building is worth "two good men" in finding and trapping a prowler quickly.

A total of $1,500 for purchase of the dogs and training of their handlers and $1,400 for building kennels and buying feed was approved in the police budget.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, who also is chairman of police commission, said the addition of three men was the absolute minimum needed for improving police protection.

He said an increase of 10 men was recommended by George Archer after his survey of the department but the commission felt improvements in internal organization would offset some of the need for this number.

CONTENTS SECRET

The mayor also said the commission wanted $25,000 as a reserve "if we are to pay any attention to Mr. Archer's other recommendations" but added he could not divulge the contents of the report until it is released by the provincial government.

Rather than give the commission a blank cheque for the amount, council decided to set up a $25,000 reserve account from which it would pay out needed sums during the year. This would ensure that aldermen knew what the money was for before it was spent.

Funeral Today For City Realtor

Funeral service for Manitoba-born realtor Lawrence H. Rands was held this morning at McCall's chapel.

The 57-year-old associate of George Randall Ltd. died here Tuesday.

He had been a resident of the city since 1933 and was known in both real estate and automotive businesses.

The widow, Mildred, survives at 381 Irving Road. A brother, Stephen, and a niece live in California.

ARROW POINTS to capsized whaler being towed alongside naval vessel by tug.

6 Saved From Strait When Boat Swamps

By IAIN HUNTER

Six seamen were saved from drowning in frigid waters off Brothie Ledge this morning when a navy whaler capsized.

The men were pitched into heavy seas when waves lashed by 40-mile-an-hour winds swamped their 27-foot craft at about 9:30 a.m.

They clung precariously to the side of the double-ended, round-bottomed open boat while tugs and navy harbor craft raced to their rescue.

Two Go Under

Two nearly went under during the rescue.

Only one seaman was detained in RCN Hospital at Esquimalt where the men were rushed in naval ambulances after being taken to the pilotage floats at Ogden Point.

The party, headed by Sub Lt. Peter Payne, had left Esquimalt Harbor only about an hour before the accident on what was to have been a two-day sailing trip to Nanooose

Bay, about 90 miles up the east coast of the Island from Victoria.

To Meet Ship

They were to rejoin their ship there and had been given permission to make the trip in the whaler.

Other members of the party were PO Edward Jones, and ordinary seamen C. Armstrong, J. Buczkowski, L. W. Kirstein and R. Nordin.

The vessel was bucking into the southwest winds with its sail up when waves began to come in over the gunwales, swamping the craft.

The navy harbor craft, Oriole III, skippered by PO Edward Aubrey, was first on the scene. It was only by chance that she was in the area, PO Aubrey said.

The harbor craft dropped lines to the men and managed to haul two aboard while the boats and men were tossed about in the water.

Near-Tragedy

However, the crew of the navy boat had only pulled the third man half-way out when he fell back, swallowing a quantity of salt water.

It is believed this man was seaman R. Nordin, the only man detained in hospital this morning.

Darrel Warren, skipper of the Warren Tug Co. boat "MT3" saw the man fall back into the water as he neared the scene.

"We got a call from the (CNR railway barge) Canora. It was lucky we were nearby at the time," he said. "We got to the men in about five minutes."

Held Him Up

"The navy crew got this man about half-way up when he dropped down. But this other fellow—I think he was the petty officer (Ted Jones)—grabbed him and held him up until we got alongside," Mr. Warren said.

The petty officer had to let go of the capsized boat in order to rescue the rating.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions Club: noon, Empress Hotel; William Tynan, "Better Business Bureau."

It was at this point that the skipper of the navy harbor craft said he lost sight of the two men in the waves for a moment.

However, the tug, which sits low in the water, was able to haul aboard the remaining four men. They later were transferred to the navy boat.

Whaler Towed

Shortly behind the "MT3" was her sister tug the "We Two" skippered by Ken Warren. This tug towed back the capsized whaler.

In the cabin of the Oriole III, the rescued men lay quaking in bunks. Their wet clothes had been removed and they were wrapped in blankets.

"It was too rough," PO Edwards said. "The waves just kept coming in over the sides and we filled up. It all happened too fast."

"But it wasn't long before they pulled us out of the water. We were only there about five minutes," he said.

GLAD to be alive is Ordinary Seaman L. W. Kirstein, as he puffs a cigarette while being carried in a stretcher to navy ambulance from rescue ship.

School Jam Eased By Prompt Action

Prompt action by the provincial department of education has been credited with relieving overcrowding in five local schools.

Recent authorization by the department for preparation of drawings for addition of 12 classrooms to the Greater Victoria elementary school system has been announced by the board.

As a result, a spokesman said today, Grade Seven classes will be retained and shift systems are unnecessary at Burnside, Frank Hobbs, Strawberry Vale, Victoria West and View Royal elementary schools.

Although it is not expected the additions will be completed by September, shift classes will be abolished as soon as possible, he said.

Chairman of the board, Mrs. Frances Thompson, said local trustees are "pleased with the speed with which the department" granted their request of last week.

DEPARTMENT BLAMED

The speedy answer followed criticism, directed by trustees at a board meeting April 17, of the "procrastination" and "stalling" of the department in meeting previous requests.

Trustee David Logan and others implied the department, along with the disruption to long-range building plans caused by the Chant report, last year's building boom, and individual architects, were responsible for overcrowding in local schools.

It was the department which bore the brunt of trustee criticism at the meeting.

As public relations chairman put it: "our plans just became bogged down in the morass at the Legislative Buildings."

However, the board has in effect exonerated the department for difficulties which may be encountered next year, at the same time urging the architects to get a move on.

The buildings and grounds committee has selected John di Castri architect for the two-room addition to Burnside; Wade, Stockill and Armour for the two-rooms each for Frank Hobbs and View Royal, and R. W. Siddall Associates for Strawberry Vale (two rooms) and Victoria West (four rooms).

In the meantime, the board has called for tenders for the addition of six classrooms to Monterey Elementary, approved by the department Thursday.

Plans for a four-room expansion of Cloverdale Elementary also have been approved. These will be contained in a separate primary unit to be erected to the rear of the main building, it was announced.

Topics of the Day

A car with a woman driver went out of control early today on the corner of Trans-Canada Highway near Goldstream known as "suicide corner."

Miss Rosli Kurz, 508 Starling Lane, told police she was travelling about 45 mph at the time of the accident. Her car rolled over.

She was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and then released.

The largest Olympic Logging Conference in 18 years opened at the Empress Hotel today with the arrival of some 350 loggers, mill-owners, suppliers and their wives.

The conference was founded here in April, 1954, when Tim Timberlake and a handful of Port Angeles loggers took a one-day excursion to Victoria and formed themselves into a conference at the Empress Hotel.

FEW APRIL SHOWERS HIT FLOWERS

If your May flowers aren't up to what they should be, you can blame it on a lack of April showers.

Precipitation, all rain, was just 77 per cent of the normal April amount, the Gonzales Weather Office reported today. Total precipitation since the first of the year has slipped to 63 per cent of normal accumulation.

Sunshine, another ingredient needed for May flowers, was well below normal for April. Last month was the fifth cloudiest April in 50 years of Victoria City Weather Office records.

The mercury dipped below freezing twice, 31.3 degrees April 1 and 31.4 degrees April 10.

Victoria Branch, St. John Ambulance Association, will try to cut down on the more than 600 drowning deaths which occurred in Canada last summer with its "Save a Life Week" program.

During the week May 27-31, free instruction will be given in artificial respiration at St. John headquarters, 941 Pandora Ave., each night from 7:30 to 9:30.

Two people were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital after the open sports car in which they were riding, turned over on Cadboro Bay Road Tuesday evening.

Ronald J. Patterson, 61 Madock West, was driving north on Cadboro Bay when his car left the paved surface and flipped upside down, near Cherriele Crescent, at about 5:40 p.m.

Police estimated damage to the car at about $350.

Mr. Patterson, 24, and his passenger, 19-year-old Ruth Green, 3911 Smuggler's Cove, were released from hospital after treatment for cuts and abrasions.

Easter Seal campaign officials are "not too optimistic" about the success of this year's drive for funds which keeps Bunny Buses operating in Greater Victoria.

Today's total stands at $12,200. Officials were hoping to better the $13,300 raised last year and possibly reach $15,000.

"There are so many drives on now, so I feel we've done very well," said Alan Sutton, chairman of the drive.

He predicted final returns will reach about $12,600.

Members of Segher's CYO will participate in sports at their meeting Friday at 9 p.m. in St. Patrick's School gym, 2368 Trent Street.

Ernest Griss Day, Sidney, was fined $100 in Sidney police court Tuesday, after being found guilty of impaired driving on the Patricia Bay Highway early Feb. 22.

The View Royal Community Association will hold a general meeting tonight at 8 in the View Royal Community Hall.

A woman charged with false pretences after obtaining goods worth $50 by a worthless cheque pleaded guilty in police court this morning.

Doreen V. Brewer is remanded for a probation report and sentence. Medical evidence showed she was mentally ill at the time of the offence.

She is now fit to plead, Dr. D. L. Alcorn, a psychiatrist, said.

Victoria Lions Club will be selling and installing auto seat belts Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. both days at Mooney's Auto Body Shop, 937 View Street.

Belts have metal-to-metal clasps and sell for $6.25 each. Installation is free.

Heavy rainfall Wednesday night dampened gardens but failed to dampen spirits for the Spring Garden Festival which started at 1 this afternoon.

Mrs. E. McCabe found a lineup of enthusiastic gardeners waiting for her when she arrived at festival headquarters, C & C Taxi, 906 Government Street, at 9 this morning.

Among the early customers were sisters, Jessie and Jean Macdonald, who came from Kamloops Wednesday night and are staying for the three-day festival.

Miss Jean Macdonald said: "I have always wanted to come and see the gardens from the inside and not just from the street."

Other visitors were Miss E. Roy and Miss H. Roy, day trippers from Vancouver, who have always enjoyed Victoria's flowers but are joining the festival tour for the first time this year.

tor's flowers but are joining the festival tour for the first time this year.

From the mainland, four busloads with members from three garden clubs took part in today's tour and on Saturday two more garden clubs are expected to join the crowd.

As for the gardens, gusts of wind up to 50 mph early this morning did little more than scatter a carpet of cherry blossoms across the lawns.

This morning Mrs. Anson Firth reported no noticeable damage although she said, "we got the southeaster right on the nose."

Mrs. Firth considers the festival one of the highlights of the year and looks forward to seeing her garden friends every year.

"We have so many returnees from the United States and they always notice any changes we have made," she said.

Earlybirds Waiting in Line for Annual Garden Tour

By MARGE GILROY

Heavy rainfall Wednesday night dampened gardens but failed to dampen spirits for the Spring Garden Festival which started at 1 this afternoon.

Mrs. E. McCabe found a lineup of enthusiastic gardeners waiting for her when she arrived at festival headquarters, C & C Taxi, 906 Government Street, at 9 this morning.

Among the early customers were sisters, Jessie and Jean Macdonald, who came from Kamloops Wednesday night and are staying for the three-day festival.

Miss Jean Macdonald said: "I have always wanted to come and see the gardens from the inside and not just from the street."

Other visitors were Miss E. Roy and Miss H. Roy, day trippers from Vancouver, who have always enjoyed Victor's flowers but are joining the festival tour for the first time this year.

From the mainland, four busloads with members from three garden clubs took part in today's tour and on Saturday two more garden clubs are expected to join the crowd.

As for the gardens, gusts of wind up to 50 mph early this morning did little more than scatter a carpet of cherry blossoms across the lawns.

This morning Mrs. Anson Firth reported no noticeable damage although she said, "we got the southeaster right on the nose."

Mrs. Firth considers the festival one of the highlights of the year and looks forward to seeing her garden friends every year.

"We have so many returnees from the United States and they always notice any changes we have made," she said.

Tourists are all garden lovers, who enjoy and respect the efforts that have gone into making gardens a show-piece. Mrs. Firth said the spectators are most considerate and she has never even had to pick up a piece of paper when the show is over.

Other gardens on view today are those of Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Ahler, 1233 Palmer; Mrs. S. L. McMullen, 1800 Tyndall; Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Widdup, 3455 Upper Terrace; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edgell, 3230 Beach Drive, and Mrs. J. G. Worth, 2835 Beach Drive.

Tours will continue Friday and Saturday from 1 to 5 in the afternoon. Buses leave C & C Taxi, 906 Government, at 1 p.m.

Tourists are reminded to wear flat-heeled shoes out of respect for the lawns and for personal comfort.

Tea and rest stops are provided en route. For further information phone EV 5-9004.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Allow Your Baby to Grow In Stretch and Wear Togs

By PENNY SAVER

Yes, it's still baby week! And I'll bet there are lots of babies who are not even aware of this national event. To Penny, there seems to be an injustice there somewhere. Every one else enjoys the fanfare that goes with various national weeks. Only babies are victims of their ignorance. That is why Penny is going to start a campaign to make every baby proud to be a part of National Baby Week.

First of all a new stretchy terry cloth diaper suit is in order. The material is machine washable and stretches as the baby grows. Price is $3.95 for the first size suit, which fits from birth until the baby reaches 20 pounds. Dome fasteners at the neck and on the pants make it easy to get into and accessible for a quick change.

Next size is $3.98. To distinguish girls from boys there are ruffles on the panties.

In this same stretchy material are jackets in pink, blue and yellow priced at $2.59. Jackets, worn in place of sweaters, have long cuffed sleeves and a waistband making them look as dapper as an Eisenhower jacket.

Baby may not wish to model a swimsuit this week but it is not too early to think of buying one, the season is only a month away. Stretch suits in white, blue or yellow are $1.98. Now to pass on some tips on how to teach your child to feed himself. Tips on child care are a dime a dozen, especially from those who don't have children, but this one in particular made sense to Penny.

It is generally agreed that every child learns by imitating. Having agreed on this, start by feeding the child on your lap with both mother and child facing the feeding bowl so the child can follow through the natural movements of spoon from bowl to mouth.

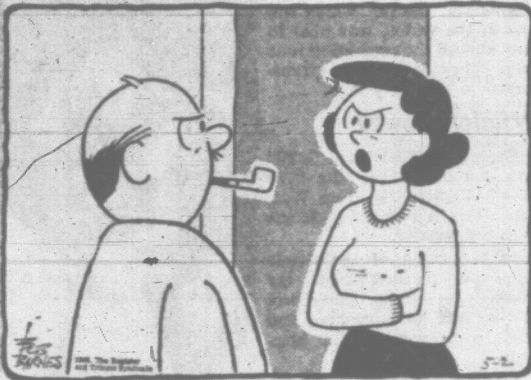

Later, when the child has advanced to a high chair, stand behind him, or at the side, so the same movements can be seen repeatedly. Naturally, a lot depends on the child's ability to co-ordinate his movements, but proper teaching helps.

When the child starts taking hold of the spoon himself, encourage self-feeding at the beginning of the meal when he is hungriest—there is always plenty of time to take over when he begins to slow up and lose interest.

Tell your baby it's National Baby Week the stretchy way, after phoning Penny at 382-3331 for the name of the store.

Gelsthorpe-Watts Wedding In St. Patrick's Church

Lilies and spring flowers decorated St. Patrick's Church, Oak Bay, for the nuptial mass in which Adrienne Mary-Jean Watts and Anthony Kendall Gelsthorpe exchanged marriage vows.

Fr. M. J. McNamara performed the ceremony. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Watts, 2960 Surrey Road, and S. O. Gelsthorpe, 1238 St. Patrick Street, and the late Mrs. Gelsthorpe.

The bride's gown of white tulle was styled with a scalloped neckline, lily point sleeves and full-length skirt gathered in deep soft pleats and extending into a train. Her silk illusion veil was held with a pearl tiara. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies and pink roses.

Attendants were gowned in turquoise peau de soie and carried bouquets of white carnations. Mrs. R. Rogers was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Joan McConnell and Miss Leslie Richardson, the bride's cousin. Lloyd Mellor was best man.

Feted
Mrs. Inez Ridley entertained at a recent shower in her home on Wishart Road, Colwood, in honor of her niece bride-elect, Miss Theresa MacNeil. A corsage of white carnations was presented to the bride-to-be and pink carnations to her mother, Mrs. E. Corbett, and grandmother, Mrs. Inez Nuttall. Gifts were placed in a decorated umbrella. Other guests were Mrs. M. Mather, Mrs. J. Nuttall, Mrs. R. Carlow, Mrs. E. Cosburn, Mrs. E. Carey, Mrs. L. Wells, Mrs. D. Proudlove, Mrs. F. Woodruff, Mrs. C. E. Mills and Misses Donna MacNeil, Darin La Croix and Marie Ridley.

Members brought paintings that they will exhibit at the Peninsula Art Group's annual show to be held at Sidney in late May.

Mrs. A. Piddington presided at the refreshment table. Vote of thanks to Major and Mrs. Nind was given by president, Miss D. Lowe.

DEAR ABBY ...

Diagnosing Doctor's Case!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a nurse, and I see things many other people don't see. For some time I have been watching the comings and goings of a young married woman. She "visits" the hospital frequently so that she can see a certain doctor, who is also married and has a family. This young woman has a fine husband and a lovely home. The entire hospital personnel is aware of the situation, and even the doctor tries his best to get rid of her. Don't you think someone should speak to this woman's husband so he can straighten her out? We'd appreciate your advice before something terrible comes about.

DEAR ABBY: I have yet to see the doctor who wasn't able to "get rid" of a woman without my help. Leave the woman's husband alone. If you really feel that someone should "straighten out" the woman—suggest it to the doctor. And he might straighten YOU out.

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old daughter wears a size 20 dress. If I have pie or cake in the house, that's what she eats for breakfast. I have four other children and a husband to feed, so I can't make only non-fattening meals for her alone. If I cook spaghetti and meatballs, I have to lock up the leftovers or this daughter will finish it. I've had her to doctors who put her on diets but she never sticks with any of them. She has no will-power. She is driving me crazy. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 12 years to a man who absolutely refuses to try anything new when it comes to food. When we are invited to dinner, if it isn't meat and potatoes, he won't even touch it. I have tried to interest him in molds, fish, chicken, salads, casserole dishes and desserts, but it's

That is what's causing her to eat compulsively. Unless your daughter is treated for the CAUSE of her overeating, she will never stick with a diet.

Her 'Hamstring' Slows Her Down

By MARGE GILROY

After longing to return to Victoria for over 20 years Mrs. Lillian Cape found herself literally "hamstrung" on arrival a few weeks ago.

The widow of Col. E. G. M. Cape says, "I had been to Victoria on four previous trips and always the longing to return stayed with me."

Preparing to leave her hometown of Montreal Mrs. Cape moved out of an old greystone house covered with ivy, and into the Ritz Carlton. Plans for her trip west were hastened when a pneumatic drill took over an eight-hour shift in the basement of the hotel. Then, at the last moment, in the stepped-up hurry of packing, a large suitcase fell on her leg. Result—Mrs. Cape was "hamstrung" for many days after arriving in this city of her dreams.

"It was a terrible wrench to leave my family in Montreal and I prefer not to think about it," she explains, "but this is where I wanted to live."

Mrs. Cape confesses she loved the great cosmopolitan centre in eastern Canada but life in a hotel, with weekends spent coming and going to visit children in the suburbs, was not appealing.

"Besides," she said, "the winters are so cold—why last winter I was only out five times."

Although Mrs. Cape has visited many parts of the world she has never had a desire to live away from Canada.

"I didn't want to leave my country," she said in a deep, resonant voice, often mistaken at the other end of a telephone for a man's voice. "Once at the Ritz in Montreal I picked up the phone and asked for the beauty parlor and they gave me the barber shop," she tells you.

MISSSES FAMILY

There are things that Mrs. Cape will miss by not living in the cultural mecca of Canada, but most of all she will miss her two sons, Dr. David Cape and Brig. John M. Cape; her daughter, Mrs. R. R. MacDougall, 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

She also has another son she has never seen. Four years ago she adopted a boy after seeing his picture in the Atlantic Monthly magazine.

Kim Ki Soon, a Korean boy whose father was killed by the Communists and whose mother later died from hard labor, was 13 at the time of his adoption. Now he is an honor student in Seoul studying for university entrance examinations so he can enroll in medical school.

Proud of her new son Mrs. Cape keeps in touch by regular correspondence.

Painting and modelling in clay have been beloved hobbies of this Montreal woman, but now that is all "toute fini."

"Now," she says, "I am content to enjoy the handwork of others and I am not going to do anything."

This would seem very unlikely especially after the active Mrs. Cape finally gets her "hamstring" unstrung.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Smart Women Wear Clothes To Match Their Personalities

Does your physical appearance match your personality? OR, do you feel youthful and gay but look stiff and old? Do you feel gallant and courageous but slump in a tired and defeated way? It is a very smart idea to match your clothes to your figure. For instance, if you are overweight:

1. Remember that prints are dangerous. If you use these at all use only very small prints. I do not know why it is so, but many overweight women wear large prints. 2. Do not wear your clothes too tight. Many women make the mistake of thinking that tight clothes make them look smaller. The opposite is true. This emphasizes bulges.

3. As a general rule, stick to solid colors and those materials which have a dull finish, or materials without sheen. This makes a great difference. Of course, black is slimming.

4. Do not wear extremely high heels or shoes with ankle straps. 5. Wear in-between hats. Extremely large ones flatten the short-plump woman, while a very small one looks like a peanut over a round face.

6. Skirt lengths should be conservative. They should be within the limit for the current style, and extremes should be avoided.

If you would like to have my free leaflet, "Clothes to Fit Your Figure and Personality," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 54 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The Beverly Hillbillies, already chosen U.S. television's top show in audience ratings, was nominated today for an Emmy as the best comedy program.

Nominations for the 15th awards of the Television Academy disclosed the CBS series was pitted against the Dick Van Dyke Show, McHale's Navy and the Danny Kaye Special with Lucille Ball in the comedy division.

Four-time Emmy winner Lucille Ball, a slapstick comedienne, and Irene Ryan, village's mountain grandma, were among the nominees for outstanding actress for the 1962-63 season.

They will compete against previous series winner Shirley Booth (Hazel), Shiri Conway (The Nurses) and Mary Tyler Moore (The Dick Van Dyke Show).

The Hillbillies also scored nominations for its writer, Paul Henning, and director, Richard Whorf.

The race for best series actor featured last year's winner, E. G. Marshall of The Defenders, plus Dick Van Dyke, Ernest Borgnine of McHale's Navy, Vic Morrow of Combat and Paul Burke of Naked City.

Nominations for the program of the year went to the Danny Kaye-Lucille Ball special, the madman segment on The Defenders, NBC's documentary of Berlin, The Tunnel, and ABC's The Voice of Charlie Pont (a Premiere play).

Three of this season's casualties were listed for the best dramatic series—the Dick Powell Theatre, Alcoa Premiere and Naked City, all dropped for 1963-64. Other nominees: The Defenders and The Eleventh Hour.

Nominated as outstanding music shows were Bell Telephone Hour, Judy Garland and her guests, Phil Silvers and Robert Goulet, Julie and Carol at Carnegie Hall, The Lively Ones and NBC Opera.

Outstanding variety shows named were the Andy Williams Show, Carol and Company with Carol Burnett, the Garry Moore Show, Here's Edie with Edie Adams, and the Red Skelton Hour.

The winners will be announced May 26 in ceremonies to be held in New York and Hollywood.

The Dick Powell Theatre burlesque of detective stories Tuesday was about as funny as a broken leg. The show had all the ingredients needed for a heady, free-wheeling spoof but didn't jell.

Bob Cummings played the Mickey Spillane-type private eye who wore a hip gun instead of a shoulder holster because "it's easier to lose a thigh than a lung."

He was assisted by such qualified people as MacDonald Carey, Sebastian Cabot, William Bendix, Keenan Wynn, Janis Paige, Jeanne Crain, Arnold Stang, William Lundigan and Jay C. Flippen.

The funniest sequence was the scene when Keenan Wynn and Sebastian Cabot, as two tough right out of Hemingway's The Killers, beat up Cummings in a cheap dining hotel room to the rhythmic oom-pah-pah of a mission band.

There were other bright spots but the over-all expected tongue-in-cheek comedy was noticeable by its absence.

ONE BIT: The Canadian Association of Broadcasters has selected CHCT-TV, Calgary, as the 1963 winner of the television station of the year award.

The judges said CHCT "while equally active in purely public service and charities as other stations submitting entries, excelled in the depth and breadth of programs with roots in the community."

TEEN-AGE CANADA

A Few Ideas For Summer Jobs

By JACK HUTTON

Looking for a summer job and finding it a depressing chore in the middle of studies? Do you wish someone would find a magic supply of ideas? Well, here for what they are worth, are summer jobs that other teen-agers have reported to us in the past.

Job Ideas

One group of teen-agers — all boys, as a matter of fact — organized themselves into a baby-sitting business. One person was listed as contact man in leaflets handed around the neighborhood.

Two girls thought they'd lost all chances of making money last summer when they went to their folks' cottage. Then they thought of getting up early and selling lunches to the fishermen leaving the dock.

One young fellow walked into a drugstore and boldly offered to answer telephones, bring in coffee or anything else the druggist wanted. The store owner was so impressed that he hired him for the summer — and also used the teenager on Saturdays during the winter.

Three Montreal teen-agers didn't find summer jobs until two weeks after school finished last year. In desperation they offered to mow lawns in their neighborhood, and discovered lady husbands all around the block.

Another teen-ager invested a bit of his savings in a garden hose with a car-washing attachment and then offered his services on a door-to-door basis. Before long he was hiring other teen-agers to help him.

It's not as difficult as one might think to find a job as a playground supervisor. Thousands of teen-agers across Canada find this a healthy rewarding summer.

If you're over 16, a good swimmer and enjoy the outdoors, it's possible you may find a job with a summer camp. And you don't have to be a counsellor, you know. There are other jobs.

A teen-age friend who couldn't think of anything else placed an advertisement a few years ago reading, "I love dogs and they love me. Shall I make sure your dog is getting enough exercise?" He spent the summer walking pet dogs — for a fee, of course.

If you're a good student and don't mind helping someone else with homework, you might volunteer to tutor other students over the summer so they can re-enter school in the fall with more confidence.

That last idea isn't as crazy as it may sound. I know of several top students who organized themselves into a "brains trust" and made good pocket money all one summer.

Those are a few ideas. If any of you have suggestions that you think others could use this summer, drop a line to this column and I'll pass them on immediately.

City Fathers

Why don't more teenagers across Canada follow the example of young politicians in Niagara Falls who will "take over" their fair city May 9?

Youth in Government Day, sponsored by the local YMCA, follows a vigorous election campaign in which local Hi-Y clubs sponsor their own aldermen, officials and mayor.

The new elected representatives, however, can't be expected to be totally familiar with the workings of civic government. Therefore, they'll spend May 9 touring civic departments after a mock council meeting.

Mayor Franklin J. Miller is enthusiastic about the project. "We give our full support to this project," he says. "It will train the youth of our city to take over the reins where we leave off."

I most envy the young fellow who will be elected "mayor." It will be his job during the day to meet newlywed couples and congratulate them on having chosen Niagara Falls for their honeymoon.

LOCAL BRIEFS

The Canada Decoration, representing 12 years' unblemished military service, was awarded to three members of 40 Technical Squadron, RCME, at Bay Street Armoury Tuesday night.

Militia men who received the decoration from B.C. Area commander Brig. E. D. Danby were WO2s J. K. Quan and J. B. Fish, and Sgt. S. N. Nicholson.

Brig. Danby conducted a formal inspection of the squadron accompanied by 25 Militia Group commander Col. Peter Ramsay and unit commander Maj. Peter Adlem.

The squadron's drum and bugle band played during the parade and as Brig. Danby observed various phases of training.

George Rosman, 136 Conard, View Royal, and Albert Lamb, 2813 Leigh, Langford, were committed in city police court Tuesday for trial on a charge of breaking and entering and theft.

They had pleaded not guilty to this and another charge of breaking into a house on the same property April 20. The second charge was withdrawn.

They elected trial-by-judge and jury on both charges when they appeared in court Tuesday.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he sends to answer, will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 26-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a 26-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia.

Andy sends a complete, 26-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Bob Britt, age 9, of Springfield, Ore., for his question:

How do bees make honey?

The warm spring weather coaxes out the young leaves and the earliest blossoms from the winter twigs. And right away, the honeybee gets busy. Chances are, this is her first day's work, but she knows exactly what to do. She is out doors shopping for the groceries to make food for the other bees of the hive—and the most important food will be a supply of rich, sweet, golden-goosy honey.

The honeybee and her sisters scout around for blossoms of all kinds. When she finds a good supply, the honeybee returns to the hive and dances in sign language to tell her sisters about it. Soon after, another and another and another buzzes straight to the flowers. Each little bee lands on a blossom, uncovers her long tongue and dips it deep into the throat of the flower.

She is sucking up sweet, liquid nectar and will go from

Bees Produce Tons of Honey

Honey is a mixture of rich sugars, and almost everybody is very fond of the sweet-tasting stuff. The experts tell us that it is a valuable food rich in enzymes, minerals and vitamins. It is easy to digest, and its sweet sugars give a quick supply of energy. Once in a great while, we find a nourishing food which is delicious to taste and the honey made by the busy honeybee is the very best of these good foods.

The busy bee hives of the United States produce about 125,000 tons of honey every year, and we buy still more honey from foreign countries. Some goes to market right in the waxy combs, but most honey is strained and purified.

Some is used to make candies, sweetmeats and desserts, and some is used to sweeten the flavor of bitter medicines. But honey is most delicious when we spread it on bread or biscuits, mix it with fruit or cereals.

'Cut Cigarette Tax'

MONTREAL (UPI) — Imperial Tobacco Company which claims about half the Canadian market, Monday called for elimination, "or at least a drastic reduction," of the federal excise tax on tobacco products.

In a brief submitted to the Carter royal commission on taxes, Imperial complained that tobacco products "unfairly bear more onerous taxes than any other commodity."

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — One of the great news stories of 1935 was the courtroom battle for custody of "little Gloria Vanderbilt," then 10... who sided against her mother, Gloria Sr., one of the first members of "the International Set." Some $4 million was involved... Gloria Jr. lost... and for years they were hostile. Eventually Gloria Jr. announced "My mother must go to work"... But family struggles end happily, sometimes... Last week "little Gloria," now 38, gave a large party at her Grace Sq. town house for her mother, who now is almost blind, and her mother's twin sister, Thelma Furness. Gloria Sr. gaped for the celebrities' hands. But the end wasn't entirely happy. Everybody understood that Gloria Jr.'s marriage to director Sidney Lumet is flimsy and speculated about the presence of actor-writer Wyatt Cooper, her latest escort... and the next book in the saga.

Bushy-haired comedian Marty Allen, who has his hair teased for comic effect, was at a theatre with his wife Frenchy, when a man sitting behind tapped him on the shoulder and said, "Madam, would you please remove your hat?"

Princess Grace switches from a Fifth Avenue hotel to the new Regency (with a name like that, naturally!) when the Rainiers come here May 13 for a fawntitt. They were at Greenbriar this past weekend, the Prince and some Philly lads then were off to catch the American Derby. Grace, denying she's his respect ing again, said, "I'd be delighted to have another baby but I'm not. However, I have gained a little weight..." Bob Blosser the Boston comic with the Jack Benny voice who used it to get on the Perry Como show (calling Jack and said "This is the other Jack Benny." Jack's writers auditioned him and Jack signed him for a May visit and an autumn appearance.

Bernice Massi of "No Strings" gave boy friend Timmy Everett monogrammed hubcaps (to be used as ashtrays)... Some men'll whip out pictures of their kids—Danny Kaye shows photos of his airplane... Ex-boxer Jake LaMotta, hoping to peddle his bio to H'wood, would be satisfied with Vince Edwards in the lead... Carlo Ponti landed film rights to "Dr. Zhivago"... Paris papers say Kim Novak'll take an apartment there near courtesier Louis Perraud's apartment... There'll be Keely-Smith beauty salons in H'wood and Las Vegas.

Robert Horton, who'll star in the Rodgers-Lerner musical, "Daisy," will pilot his own plane to summer stock jobs still then... Ex-financier Eddie Gilbert's Manhattan town house is on the market, for a mere $650,000... TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The Broadwayite's idea of a real outdoor man is a guy who'd rather watch a movie in a drive-in theatre than on TV.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: If you take your wife to dinner the tax department won't let you put it on the expense account. Meaning, says Jackie Kannon, you can't deduct for entertaining the boss.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "About the time we think we can make ends meet, somebody moves the ends."

—Herbert Hoover. EARL'S PEARLS: Any parent can tell you—all you have to do to make a child hungry is take him to an expensive restaurant. That's earl, brother.

RAGING FIRE SWEEPS ACROSS ALASKA TOWN

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A raging fire was reported sweeping unchecked today through the downtown section of the fishing community of Cordova, about 150 miles southwest of here.

Last word before communications were knocked out said at least six buildings had been destroyed.

Evacuation of Second Town Planned in N.W.T. Floods

750 Set To Flee By 'Copter

FORT SIMPSON, N.W.T. (CP)—A flood crest moving down the Liard River was expected to hit this island community at the junction of the Liard and Mackenzie tonight and five helicopters were being rushed into the area in an effort to evacuate the 750 residents. Three-quarters of the island was already under water.

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

18 Years' Work Gone in Minute

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—A flood crest moving down the Liard River was expected to hit this island community at the junction of the Liard and Mackenzie tonight and five helicopters were being rushed into the area in an effort to evacuate the 750 residents. Three-quarters of the island was already under water.

Bouvier, who had no savings, is still somewhat stunned by disbelief at what he estimates a $2,800 loss.

"It's not my fault," he said. "What am I going to do? Start out all over again?"

One minute he had a modest home, a garage, a collection of tools, a 16-foot fishing boat and two outboard motors. The next minute they were gone in a sweep of angry flood waters.

Bouvier, 44, his wife and four children — the youngest is 22 months — escaped with only the clothes on their backs.

"We just had time to get out of bed, dress the kids and get out of the door—then there was water all over the place," he said.

"We had no blankets, nothing."

The story of disaster in the greatest disaster to hit this community on the south shore of Great Slave Lake.

"All we have is what we're standing in," said S. H. (Slim) Bodverson, father of six who are to be evacuated with their mother to Fort Smith, 100 miles southeast of here.

"I don't think there is anything left—the house is absolutely demolished," said the 47-year-old carpenter and part-time fisherman.

When awakened by police early Tuesday, the Bodversons, who live near the Hay River's east channel, didn't realize the seriousness of the threat, he said. But after a leisurely breakfast they saw the water begin to climb quickly. The family pulled out in haste.

INDIANS HUDDLED IN CANOES

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—A band of 160 Indian men, women and children huddled together in canoes Wednesday night when the flood-swollen Hay River inundated their camp area here.

Many of the group had inadequate clothing to face a biting 25-mile-an-hour wind and freezing temperatures. Their warmth was gained by huddling together.

William Presloski, Fort Smith Indian Agency superintendent, obtained rations in Hay River Wednesday night and had them dropped by helicopter to the group just before dark.

They survived the night without incident.

There was no flood insurance on the six-room structure, valued at $3,500. "I don't think a man can get flood insurance here," said the grim Bodverson.

"I'm going to have to build again somewhere, but not down there," he said. "But money is a problem. I couldn't even buy timber for the foundation. We're all so broke we can't get out of here."

Rudy Steiner, head of Territorial Expeditors, estimates his loss at $100,000 which included house, garage, office and contracting equipment. The buildings were carried away from Steiner's property.

"Eighteen years of hard work and it's all gone in half an hour," he said bitterly. He and his wife, Hazel, and their two children fled their house with only the clothes they were wearing.

LAING WILL INSPECT FLOOD-STRICKEN AREA

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing will fly into Yellowknife and then by light plane to flood-stricken Hay River tonight, Commissioner Gordon Robertson of the Northwest Territories, said today.

Mr. Robertson said arrangements have been made to pick up Mr. Laing, now at Vancouver, at Edmonton with a plane carrying two senior northern affairs officials to Yellowknife.

TWO-MAN TEAM

U.S. Climbers Tame Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—Two American climbers conquered 29,028-foot Mount Everest Wednesday in the first United States attempt to scale the world's highest mountain.

A message received today at the Everest Expedition base camp and radioed to the outside world said two members of the expedition had reached the summit of Everest, but their names were not yet known.

No details of the climb were available in the first radio flash to Katmandu of the American triumph.

The assault on the Himalayan peak was made by a team that left a camp 1,200 feet below the summit.

The announcement that the mountain had been conquered came after two days of radio silence between the base camp and the summit team.

It was the earliest time of the year that the Himalayan peak had ever been conquered.

Everest was first scaled by New Zealander Sir Edmund Hillary and Sherpa porter Tensing Norgay May 29, 1953.

The 18-man expedition to Everest was led by veteran mountaineer Norman G. Dyrenfurth of Santa Monica, Calif., and financed by the U.S. National Geographic Society.

Cruisers Sighted Near Sunk Ship

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese Broadcasting Corporation said today its reporters saw two unidentified warships when they flew over the area where the crew of a Communist Chinese freighter claimed it was torpedoed Wednesday.

The Japanese Maritime Safety Board commented that neither Japan nor the United States had any warships in the area at that time.

The 9,482-ton Yue Jin sank off South Korea, reporting it was attacked by an unidentified vessel in the East China Sea.

The Japanese Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) showed pictures on a television newscast of two warships steaming in open waters. It identified the two vessels as the ones spotted by its reporters in a flight over the area.

NHK said the two warships were steaming in a circle about half a mile from the spot where the freighter sank. The warships appeared to be cruisers. It added, and one of them bore the number 25.

PAPER HITS U.S.

In Hong Kong, the Communist Chinese language newspaper New Evening Post suggested "trouble-makers, possibly Americans," sank the Yue Jin on its way to a Japanese port.

Japanese officials could not confirm the crew's claim that it was hit by three torpedoes and suggested, because all crew members survived, that the vessel might have run aground or hit a Korean war mine which minesweeping teams failed to clean up.

GOVERNMENT-BUILT CAUSEWAY BLAMED FOR ANNUAL FLOOD

Ice Wall in Hay River Stops for Nothing

By LESLIE MILLIN

"When that ice comes down the river, it doesn't stop for anything. It just keeps coming, and the noise is like thunder."

Two Victorians, former residents of Hay River, N.W.T., were trying to describe the awesome sight of spring breakup on one of Canada's northland rivers—and the even more awesome sight of the river in flood.

"It's quite a thing to see a wall of ice going over and over," says Mrs. Marjorie Townsend, 3375 Maplewood, a resident of the Hay River area since 1949.

"And it's quite a situation to have 2,000 people stranded on an island. It happens regularly every spring."

Floods like the one isolating Hay River at present are not common—the last bad one was in 1951—but there is moderate flooding every spring, and every spring the residents of Hay River watch the banks anxiously and wonder when the government will do something for them.

For 11 years, says Saanich fur farmer William Hopper, Imperial Oil agent in Hay River for seven years, the federal government has filled in a causeway through the west channel of the Hay River to allow the Mackenzie Highway through to the delta town.

For 11 years, the denizens of Hay River have watched the "fill" back up flood waters until the weight of the river could no longer be restrained, and highway and causeway were together swept down into Great Slave Lake.

"The federal government is responsible for the situation as it exists there," says Mr. Hopper bitterly. "They never built a bridge as they should have."

"We fought for that bridge, and all we got were excuses and no money."

"That 'fill' was holding back at least six feet of water. The bridge should have been completed 10 years ago."

"They've never done anything about flood control. I don't think they believe in Hay River. They say in 10 years it'll just be a ghost town."

Besides being a fishing centre, Hay River is the communications nerve centre of the Great Slave Lake area, says Mr. Hopper, and has a magnificent natural harbor.

Mr. Hopper is now a milk farmer on the East Saanich Road, but still holds several pieces of property in Hay River.

He is convinced that Hay River will live with the threat of flood and isolation every year until the mud and logs on which the Mackenzie Highway crosses to the delta town are replaced by a bridge, and he doesn't think this will happen until a Northwest Territories commissioner lives in the north, not in Ottawa.

Until that happens, residents of Hay River will listen for the thunder of the ice breakup, inspect the banks nervously and wait.

WILSON MEETS PEARSON

Mac Blamed For Trade Slip

LONDON (UPI)—British Labor Leader Harold Wilson, who could be the country's prime minister within a year, today promised Canadian Prime Minister Pearson that a Labor government would go all out to bolster Commonwealth trade.

Wilson, the opinion poll favorite to oust Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the next British election, outlined his strong views on Commonwealth trade to Pearson during a 30-minute chat in the new Canadian leader's plush hotel suite.

The two men, old acquaintances from their previous days in government, also talked informally over orange juice about the general international situation and Western defense problems.

The pipe-smoking Wilson made it clear after the meeting, however, that Commonwealth trade dominated the discussions.

"I feel that Commonwealth trade has been allowed to become run down," the Socialist leader told newsmen. "In my view, there was no reason for this."

"I do not accept, as the British government seems to, that an historic downward trend in Commonwealth trade is inevitable."

Wilson blamed the situation, along with Britain's chronic trade imbalance with Canada, on British government policy and the failure of some British exporters to take advantage of opportunities. He accused the Macmillan administration of "sacrificing" Commonwealth trade in favor of closer ties with continental Europe.

Pearson declined to go into details, but said he had "a good talk" with Wilson.

MEETS CABINET

Pearson opened his official talks with Macmillan over lunch at Admiralty House following a brief introduction to the British cabinet. The two leaders were to hold more working sessions later in the day and Friday.

Inserted in the Canadian leader's itinerary for the day was a meeting with NATO Secretary-General Dirk Stikker who flew here from Paris after Pearson agreed to see him in preparation for the NATO ministerial conference in Ottawa later this month.

Firings Protested By Tory Ex-Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Hon. Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister, cabled Prime Minister Pearson in London today to protest "the absolutely ruthless" replacement of veterans affairs department employees.

Mr. Churchill, also a former veterans affairs minister, asked for immediate reinstatement on the Canadian Pension Commission of Ken MacKay, formerly of Drayton Valley, Alta., and Winnipeg, and a "cessation of this abuse of ministerial authority."

At the same time, he sent a telegram to new Veterans Minister Roger Teillet describing Mr. MacKay's release as "a disgraceful act" and stating that this "deprived First World War veterans and the province of Alberta of a representative on the pension commission."

In an interview, Mr. Churchill said Mr. MacKay was appointed to the pension commission May 1, 1962, by Conservative cabinet order for a one-year term. He said Mr. MacKay was notified last Friday there would be no extension of his term.

In his telegram to Mr. Teillet, Mr. Churchill said "the practice has been to continue the non-permanent appointment to the War Veterans Allowance Board and to the Pension Commission on a year-to-year renewal basis until a permanent position opens or until retirement at age 70 or after 10 years' service."

T. D. Anderson, commission chairman, told a reporter that Mr. MacKay's work had been "entirely satisfactory."

Mr. Anderson confirmed Mr. Churchill's statement that the practice on temporary appointments had been to continue them on a year-to-year basis or until retirement at age 70.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Industrials Hit New Record High

Industrials hit a record high of 630.41 during trading today on the Toronto stock market. After touching the peak the market started to slip back. Except for banks, most industrial groups were dominated by plus signs but price changes were generally fractional. Consolidated Paper and CPR were among the leaders. New York was up in moderate trading. Gains of most key stocks were fractional.

AT MONTREAL stocks were mainly up on the stock exchange today. Trading was moderate.

AT LONDON the stock market continued to move confidently ahead today, helped by further favorable company statements. Investment buying brought widespread gains to gilts, ranging to 1/2.

AT TORONTO in the base metals, Labrador advanced 1/2, Denison 1/2, Mining Corporation and International Nickel each 1/2 and Noranda 1/2.

Western oils were fairly quiet but moved ahead with Dome, Home A and Hudson's Bay all edging ahead 1/2.

AT NEW YORK Canadian Pacific was ahead 1/2 and International Nickel 1/2 on the Canadian list while Aluminum Ltd., Hudson Bay Mining and Distillers Seagrams added 1/2 each. Walker Gooderham was up 1/2, Granby Mining 1/2 and McIntyre Forcupine 1/2.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Exchange. Canadian Marconi added 1/2 while Molybdenite declined 1/2.

TAXATION PROBE

Retained Earnings 'Bad for Country'

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto professor tackled the problems surrounding the retained earnings of corporations today by suggesting that all corporate income be taxed on the shareholders regardless of whether they receive the money.

J. E. Sands of the University of Toronto's political economy department said the practice of shareholders allowing their dividends to accumulate within corporations — so they won't have to pay personal income tax on them — is bad for investors and for the country as a whole.

When income is retained by a corporation, the value of the shares tends to rise and the shareholders can sell their shares as a tax-free capital gain.

Prof. Sands said in a brief to the Carter royal commission on taxation that these accumulated earnings stimulate corporations to expand continuously "even though profit prospects may not warrant expansion." It brought about artificial stimulation of investment and "resources are misallocated and aggregate production is reduced."

To permit shareholders to defer taxes indefinitely on income retained by corporations "is, in effect, to make interest free loans to them for investment, out of the taxes paid by the rest of the country."

He said his suggestion would probably result in bigger dividends with more money flowing through the economy.

An objection to this plan, said Prof. Sands, involves the argument that it would be unfair to tax a person on money he did not receive.

"The answer to this objection is that it would seldom be the least bit difficult for a shareholder to obtain the necessary cash." Even if the shareholder did not want to sell his shares, he could borrow money against them.

A second objection, he said, might be the fact that shares are often held for a short period of time and it would be difficult to calculate the amount earned by a corporation in these periods.

The answer would be to make the tax payable over a complete fiscal year of the corporation.

There was another argument that a compulsory dividend tax would affect incentive for investment. His answer: "Investment would be reduced only in those places where it was being made for the wrong reasons, for tax reasons."

Prof. Sands' brief also suggested that capital gains, now not taxable, should be simply

V.I. ROUNDUP

North Cowichan Tax 32-33 Mills

NORTH COWICHAN—The southern section of North Cowichan will have a tax rate of 32 mills this year and in the northern section ratepayers will have to pay 33 mills.

Each area has the same general tax of 10 mills. The difference in the total is caused by school taxes. Cowichan school district has levied 22 mills while ratepayers in the north, which is included in Ladysmith school district, will have to pay 23 mills for education.

Last year the mill rate in both areas was even 31. The general tax last year was 7.5 mills. This year's budget totals $1,440,360.

Coun. Tony Staples claims the present general tax of 10 mills gives North Cowichan one of the lowest rates in the province.

COWICHAN BAY—Burglars who struck on the waterfront here early Wednesday got away with some petty cash. Places raided were Shell Oil Company building, Esso Oil, where an attempt was made to open a wall safe, and Standard Oil Company.

NORTH COWICHAN—Fire brigades in South End, Chemainus, Maple Bay and Crofton each will receive $200 in grants from North Cowichan. Reeve Donald Morton said the money is in appreciation of the services that individual firefighters give to the community.

Altogether council has approved $1,802 in grants to 24 organizations.

NORTH COWICHAN—Gibbins Road residents in North Cowichan want the zoning by-law changed to keep private hospitals out of a single-family dwelling area.

Council is to arrange a public hearing on the request contained in a petition presented recently.

The petitioners said a private hospital in their locality would depreciate property values in this choice section of the municipality.

DUNCAN—Weldon Jubenville resumes leadership of Duncan Local 1-80 after a year's lapse brought on by a lengthy dispute and strike of miller loggers.

He was elected president Wednesday by a majority of 300 votes over 1962 president Percy Clements, who had defeated Mr. Jubenville at the height of the dispute last year.

Nearly 3,000 members of an eligible 3,700 cast ballots in the election.

Lorne Johnston is first vice-president, Paul Ross second vice-president, Dal Pratt third vice-president, Ed Linder financial secretary, Irven Miller recording secretary, Robert MacDonald warden, Carl Stevens conductor, James Thomas trustee and Ross Davis safety director.

NANAIMO—A man who apparently killed himself in his boat in Nanaimo harbor has been identified by RCMP as Robert Herbert Hulme. Mr. Hulme, about 55, died of gunshot wounds. Mrs. Hulme discovered the body.

NANAIMO—Juvenile offenders in Brannen Lake Boys' Industrial School are helping the Nanaimo tourist industry.

They are painting signs for highways in the Nanaimo area plugging the Jaycee tourist promotion slogan, "Follow the Bastion."

About 75 signs will be put in place during the next two weeks.

PARKVILLE—Property owners will be taxed by nearly three mills more than last year, village commissioners decided this week.

A special meeting set the

He said that since power and lights had been restored everyone lodged in the school should be fairly comfortable for the night.

While officials said there appeared to be no physical danger in remaining on the flooded island, the town faced increasing health hazards because of flooded sewage facilities, a shortage of drinking water and restricted electric power. Power was off completely for several hours Wednesday.

The temperature at Hay River Wednesday hovered near the 30-degree mark.

A poll was conducted and 335 elected to leave.

After a 45-minute flight to Yellowknife with 50 evacuees in a C-46 transport, Capt. Kees Fransberger, Pacific Western Airlines pilot, said his passengers "looked very sad and quiet."

Quite a few of the 18 children on the plane were crying.

Capt. Fransberger said the Hay River airport was "surprisingly good."

"We were a little apprehensive at first because there was a weight limit of 10,000 pounds and the loaded C-46 weighs more than 40,000."

Capt. Fransberger said the plane had to wait one hour at Hay River while evacuees arrived "by canoe and outboard."

A relay of trucks and boats carried evacuees through the muddy townsite, laced by stretches of water and mud, to the airport.

An RCAF C-119 transport plane was to leave Edmonton early today for Hay River carrying 2,500 pounds of Red Cross emergency supplies. The supplies were packed in 12 large wicker baskets to be dropped by parachute. The C-119 is too big to land at the airport.

SEE EARLY RELIEF Mayor McBryan said Wednesday night that relief for the flooded town could come "earlier than expected."

He said a crack in ice on Great Slave Lake had appeared 150 yards from shore. He said army demolition crews were to report today on action they may take to further break up lake ice to allow passage of boats.

Mr. McBryan said that five miles of ice still remain jammed in the Hay River.

An army demolition expert, Maj. R. R. Buckley, who a week ago supervised blasting to ease a flood at Whitecourt, Alta., was in Hay River studying the situation.

Two RCAF helicopters which were to assist in the evacuation were delayed Wednesday night. An air force spokesman said the 12-passenger helicopters from the Cold Lake RCAF base were forced to land at Murray, Alta., by icing conditions and would not be able to reach Hay River until this morning. McMurray is 325 miles southeast of Hay River.

The helicopters were to be used to ferry evacuees from the school across flooded areas to the airport.

Two City Firms Give YM-YWCA $10,000 Each

Two Victoria firms have responded to the YM-YWCA appeal for $1,138,666 to erect a new building with gifts of $10,000 each.

In making the presentation on behalf of his firm, Newton D. Cameron, president, Victoria Plywood Ltd., said "it is now up to Victoria to see that this campaign comes through to its objective. A new combined YM-YWCA building will be one more facility, one that should not be further postponed and which will contribute so much to a better life in Victoria."

In announcing the $10,000 gift from Evans, Coleman and Evans, D. W. Smith, manager, Vancouver Island division, said "it is an axiom of industry that progress can only be achieved by producing better products and improving service. This is the reason why business men should support such causes as the YM-YWCA. What better investment can be made than in improving the bodies, minds and souls of our youth?"

Plans are to be drawn for a new $100,000 community hall for Gordon Head.

Residents of the area Wednesday night gave enthusiastic approval to a scheme to replace the 70-year-old building now in use on Tyndall Ave.

After plans have been drawn the area is to be canvassed for financial support.

A covered, heated swimming pool, a 72x50-foot hall, a full basement to allow multiple use of facilities and a stage and dressing rooms are to be included in the plans.

MENTAL HOSPITAL Her counsel, Angelo Branca, said Mrs. Money had been confined to a mental hospital since Jan. 12, 1962. He said he would admit as a fact that she was perfectly able to instruct counsel.

Mr. Branca said Mrs. Money married the deceased, W. J. Money, in December, 1959, and in March, 1960, was delivered of a dead child, prematurely born. Shortly after, she was confined to Crease Clinic because of a mental disorder.

Subsequently she had another child, but in December, 1961, she had become depressed mentally.

On the night of the murder, her husband was to have gone to work in a rock crushing plant at midnight. At 11:30 p.m. three of his fellow workers called for him. The house was in darkness and the men were unable to rouse anyone, even when they knocked several times on the door and called out to him.

FOUND BODY Finally they entered the house and found William Money lying in bed bleeding from the nose and mouth. Mrs. Money was beside him in a deep sleep.

Mr. Money had two gunshot wounds in his chest, Mr. Branca said, and death was attributed to these wounds.

Mrs. Money was in a dazed condition and could not recall what happened. She was later heard to say "What a terrible thing I have done."

"She would not believe her husband was dead," Mr. Branca told the jury. "She said she had been talking to her husband Bill and her baby. She could not accept the fact he was dead."

NO DISAGREEMENT "In the hospital she asked repeatedly why her husband did not come to see her. She mentioned nightmares in which she was about to die.

"There was no disagreement known of in the home," Mr. Branca continued. "They lived quite happily together."

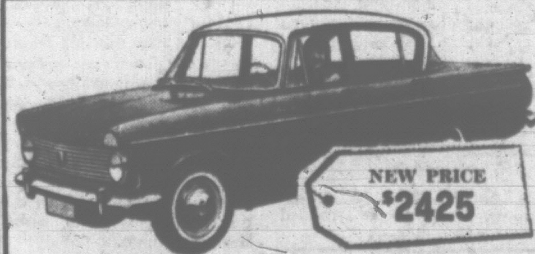

Mr. Branca said he admitted that the deceased came to his death as the result of an unlawful act on the part of the defendant in bed at her home.

"She had the revolver in her hand and from it were discharged two bullets, each of which entered the deceased and caused his death," counsel said.

Dr. J. E. Boulting, deputy medical superintendent at Esplanade, testified that Mrs. Money was suffering from a disease of the mind at the time of the murder.

N.W.T. FLOODS Defence Sharing Planned

Major McBryan estimated flood damage to the town so far at more than $1,000,000.

Trucks, bulldozers, boats and planes combined to evacuate people from Hay River, left in shambles by still threatening flood waters.

Three trucks carrying blankets evacuated noses off water covered streets and one of them almost tipped over before it was pulled back on the street.

BOATS DODGE ICE Boats used on the last leg of the trip to the half flooded airport had to dodge ice.

Another 400-450 persons were to follow today.

Weary disaster officials here hope the exodus will help ease problems—health, water shortage, cleanup—which will face Hay River.

About 90 per cent of the town is flooded to a degree. A quarter of the buildings have been swept off foundations or set ajar.

About 600 people stayed overnight at the main evacuation headquarters, the two-storey St. Paul's separate school, one of the few town structures free of flood waters.

They slept in the gym, corridors and classrooms—or as one person expressed it "everywhere but on the coast hooks."

Others stayed at other high and dry spots such as the hospital and Roman Catholic convent.

POWER RESTORED Before the evacuation began, people in the federal day school were transferred to St. Paul's where power was restored after a six-hour team-side blackout.

Propane stoves and tanks were taken to St. Paul's by boat to provide cooking facilities during the blackout.

Most of the population received shots for typhoid and para-typhoid fever with serum flown from Edmonton.

Most of the evacuees to Yellowknife and Fort Smith were women and children, although a few men made the trip.

Seven planes chartered by northern affairs or donated were used — a C-46, Bristol, DC-3, three Otters and a Cessna 185.

Gravel and delivery trucks carrying evacuees were towed by bulldozers through deep water.

The food supply apparently was sufficient. Drinking water may be another matter. There was a considerable amount in storage tanks around town but it was difficult to obtain at times.

LONDON (UPI) — Canada and Britain agreed today to work toward closer co-operation in the field of defence research and development.

The agreement was reached during a 30-minute meeting between Canada's new defence minister Paul Hellyer and his British opposite, Peter Thorneycroft.

"We had a very beneficial talk," Hellyer told newsmen. "We're hopeful that from it will come a greater degree of co-operation in the research and development field than in the past."

"Modern weapons are so expensive that this seems the best way to get maximum value and utilization out of them."

MAY BUY PLANE Hellyer said officials of both governments would follow up today's ministerial meeting on "two or three specific proposals."

He added that one of them involved a reconnaissance "drone" aircraft now under development by Canadian Ltd., of Montreal.

The Canadian defence minister said he and Thorneycroft also covered the main topics to come before the NATO ministerial meeting in Ottawa later this month.

"The British favor creation of an inter-allied nuclear force in NATO and naturally they would like to have our support for their proposals," he said. "I promised that we would give it serious consideration."

FIRST AID DEMONSTRATION AT SCHOOL

Mock War Thrills Spectators

A dozen of the "enemy" were killed and the remainder of the squad "routed" in a "sneak attack" at University School Wednesday afternoon.

The mock battle, complete with rifles and blank ammunition, smoke screen and barricades was a part of the annual inspection of the 170 University School Cadet Corp (C. Scot. R.) on the school grounds. The purpose of the battle was to demonstrate the first-aid techniques learned by the cadets, but most of the 300 spectators were more interested in the exceptionally real battle.

COMPANY DRILL Lieut.-Col. G. G. Brown, CD, of the First Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was the inspecting officer. He inspected the 166 boys, who ranged in age from 14 to 18, then took the salute in a march-past by the five platoons.

After the mock battle and a display by the 22-member band, Lt.-Col. Brown presented the 1963 awards.

For shooting, Cadet D. L. Dennis was awarded the Junior Trophy; Cadet R. H. Barker the Intermediate Don Braidwood Cup, and C/Captain J. C. Mackie and C/Lieutenant A. D. Geissler jointly the Senior Harvey Rifle. C/Capt. J. C. Mackie was also awarded the DCRA Goldby Trophy, the Heals Range Rich Cup and the Master Cadet Certificate.

The "Stick" man of the day was Cadet T. S. H. Roberts; for the platoons, and C/Lance Corporal A. J. Timmis for the band.

The coveted Platoon Cup was awarded to the No. 3 Platoon, commanded by C/Lt. Geissler.

Lt.-Col. Brown, in his closing remarks, said it was gratifying to see a cadet corps that was second to none.

The display was "absolutely first class," he said.

Two RCAF helicopters which were to assist in the evacuation were delayed Wednesday night. An air force spokesman said the 12-passenger helicopters from the Cold Lake RCAF base were forced to land at Murray, Alta., by icing conditions and would not be able to reach Hay River until this morning. McMurray is 325 miles southeast of Hay River.

Arthur Mayse

In our house as in everyone else's, Wednesday marked the start of May. We launched the new month at 7 a.m. daylight saving time, which still feels like 6 a.m. to us, with a sleepily-muttered "Swan!"

How and where this bit of tradition, superstition or whatever got its start, I haven't the least idea. But it's supposed to bring a lucky month, so we take no chances.

Most families, I suspect, indulge in at least one amiable gesture to the fates, even if it's only to drop a pinch of spilled salt over the shoulder.

If you have a statuette of Kwan Yin, Chinese goddess of mercy, you're supposed to touch the lotus lady's porcelain hand daily. We go farther, and give her a flower to hold. We also hope for a dark man as our first visitor of the new year; and back when I could do so without the risk of potting some denizen of a Gordon Head that's become plumb cliffed, I used to salute a fresh January with three rifle shots.

All the above in defiance of Dr. Brock Chisholm, who strives to substitute the clear light of reason for our mumbo-jumbo folkways, and would probably take a stern view of such current junior-miss incantations as this: First you count 99 red sport cars, see?

Then you watch for a woman in a purple dress, like.

Next you go looking for a man with a red beard, sort of.

After that, you're free to cast an eye on any boy who takes your fancy, and if you didn't miscount sport cars or settle for a purple-coat instead of dress, or nick the wrong shade of beard, you've teased your future husband. This can be the guy with the beard, even if you like beards, and if some faster sport car counter hasn't put the hex on him first.

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, there's a letter that goes far toward explaining why, in hotter-blooded lands than ours, a favored slogan of placard-bearers and wall-scribblers is "Yankee, go home!"

Dear Sirs: I have just finished reading your article on Canada. Now that is the end! How dare they take that attitude toward us?

The United States is in the position of the rich relative who has poorer relations living off his bounty. Sooner or later the poorer relations are bound to hold us in scorn and resent us. So they resent the fact that our capital invested in their country gives the investors too much say in the affairs of Canada? Well, do they expect people to invest money and not have anything to say about that investment? Did anyone twist their arms to force them to accept that capital that they resent so much? I say they should look upon it as good fortune that when they didn't have the capital to develop their resources we did!

Mrs. William Coleman, Gettysburg, Pa.

To all of which, this poor Canadian relation suggests that room rent doesn't give a boarder the right to take over the house... and that fond though we are of our neighbors south, we'd love them better if they'd quit stamping on our toes!

Since I prefer to remember Mrs. Coleman's Gettysburg in a nobler context, let's move on to Victoria Music Festival.

A while ago I told you about the little cerebral palsy victim who likes to dance, and her Grade 2 classmates who insisted she compete in the festival with the rest of them.

"After you printed that," Mrs. Stella Kemp of 2086 Granite Road tells me, "we had several calls from people who felt it was all wrong to let a handicapped child reduce the group's chance of winning. But we had a lot more calls from ones who approved our decision."

Well, as you may have noticed, the Tolmie dancers didn't place last, as they and their teachers had expected. They tied for first place, and drew special praise from the adjudicator for their lively, happy performance.

Then, to complete their triumph, they were chosen for Wednesday night's honor performance at Central Junior High, a distinction reserved for groups which particularly impressed the festival judges.

Mrs. Kemp and Mrs. Marjorie Sturgeon, Tolmie's Grade 2 teachers, are properly pleased about this. So are the children whom they coached for the festival.

And happiest of all is the bright and eager youngster who wasn't left out.

BY JOHN MIKA

City council today put up the money for a crackdown on crime.

The 100-member city police force will get three more men and three trained dogs this year.

It also will get a Breathalyzer for quick and accurate readings on the alcohol level in a suspect's system.

In addition, a special reserve fund of $25,000 will be set up by council on which the police commission can draw this year to implement a number of still-secret recommendations in the Archer report.

Council also was warned that a borrowing bylaw likely will be necessary to finance extensive renovations of the police station.

Introduction of trained dogs is expected to triple the efficiency of patrols through business areas at night.

Alderman were told that a trained dog let loose in a store or building is worth "two good men" in finding and trapping a prowler quickly.

A total of $1,500 for purchase of the dogs and training of their handlers and $1,400 for building kennels and buying feed was approved in the police budget.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, who also is chairman of police commission, said the addition of three men was the absolute minimum needed for improving police protection.

He said an increase of 10 men was recommended by George Archer after his survey of the department but the commission felt improvements in internal organization would offset some of the need for this number.

CONTENTS SECRET

The mayor also said the commission wanted $25,000 as a reserve "if we are to pay any attention to Mr. Archer's other recommendations" but added he could not divulge the contents of the report until it is released by the provincial government.

Rather than give the commission a blank cheque for the amount, council decided to set up a $25,000 reserve account from which it would pay out needed sums during the year. This would ensure that aldermen knew what the money was for before it was spent.

The View Royal Community Association will hold a general meeting tonight at 8 in the View Royal Community Hall.

A woman charged with false pretences after obtaining goods worth $50 by a worthless cheque pleaded guilty in police court this morning.

Doreen V. Brewer was remanded for a probation report and sentence. Medical evidence showed she was mentally ill at the time of the offence.

She is now fit to plead, Dr. D. L. Alcorn, a psychiatrist, said.

Victoria Lions Club will be selling and installing auto seat belts Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. both days at Mooney's Auto Body Shop, 837 View Street.

Belts have metal-to-metal clasps and sell for $6.25 each. Installation is free.

Funeral Today For City Realtor

Funeral service for Manitoba-born realtor Lawrence H. Rands was held this morning at McCall's chapel.

The 57-year-old associate of George Randall Ltd. died here Tuesday.

He had been a resident of the city since 1933 and was known in both real estate and automotive businesses.

The widow, Mildred, survives at 361 Irving Road. A brother, Stephen, and a niece live in California.

ARROW POINTS to capsized whaler being towed alongside naval vessel by tug.

6 Saved From Strait When Boat Swamps

By IAIN HUNTER

Six seamen were saved from drowning in frigid waters off Brothie Ledge this morning when a navy whaler capsized.

The men were pitched into heavy seas when waves lashed by 40-mile-an-hour winds swamped their 27-foot craft at about 9:30 a.m.

Two Go Under

Two nearly went under during the rescue.

Only one seaman was detained in RCN Hospital at Esquimalt where the men were rushed in naval ambulances after being taken to the pilotage floats at Ogden Point.

The party, headed by Sub Lt. Peter Payne, had left Esquimalt Harbor only about an hour before the accident on what was to have been a two-day sailing trip to Nanooze

Bay, about 90 miles up the east coast of the Island from Victoria.

To Meet Ship

They were to rejoin their ship there and had been given permission to make the trip in the whaler.

Other members of the party were PO Edward Jones, and ordinary seamen C. Armstrong, J. Buckowski, L. W. Kirstein and R. Nordin.

The vessel was bucking into the southwest winds with its sail up when waves began to come in over the gunwales, swamping the craft.

The navy harbor craft, Oriole III, skippered by PO Edward Aubrey, was first on the scene. It was only by chance that she was in the area, PO Aubrey said.

The harbor craft dropped lines to the men and managed to haul two aboard while the boats and men were tossed about in the water.

Near-Tragedy

However, the crew of the navy boat had only pulled the third man half-way out when he fell back, swallowing a quantity of salt water.

It is believed this man was seaman R. Nordin, the only man detained in hospital this morning.

Darrel Warren, skipper of the "Warren Tug Co." boat "MT3" saw the man fall back into the water as he neared the scene.

"We got a call from the (CNR railway barge) Canora. It was lucky we were nearby at the time," he said. "We got to the men in about five minutes."

Held Him Up

"The navy crew got this man about half-way up when he dropped down. But this other fellow—I think he was the petty officer (Ted Jones)—grabbed him and held him up until we got alongside," Mr. Warren said.

The petty officer had to let go of the capsized boat in order to rescue the rating.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions Club: noon, Empress Hotel; William Tyndall, "Better Business Bureau."

It was at this point that the skipper of the navy harbor craft said he lost sight of the two men in the waves for a moment.

However, the tug, which sits low in the water, was able to haul aboard the remaining four men. They later were transferred to the navy boat.

Whaler Towed

Shortly behind the M.T.3 was her sister tug the "We Two" skippered by Ken Warren. This tug towed back the capsized whaler.

In the cabin of the Oriole III, the rescued men lay quaking in bunks. Their wet clothes had been removed and they were wrapped in blankets.

"It was too rough," PO Edwards said. "The waves just kept coming in over the sides and we filled up. It all happened too fast."

"But it wasn't long before they pulled us out of the water. We were only there about five minutes," he said.

GLAD to be alive is Ordinary Seaman L. W. Kirstein, as he puffs a cigarette while being carried in a stretcher to navy ambulance from rescue ship.

School Jam Eased By Prompt Action

Prompt action by the provincial department of education has been credited with relieving overcrowding in five local schools.

Recent authorization by the department for preparation of drawings for addition of 12 classrooms to the Greater Victoria elementary school system has been announced by the board.

As a result, a spokesman said today, Grade Seven classes will be retained and shift systems are unnecessary at Burnside, Frank Hobbs, Strawberry Vale, Victoria West and View Royal elementary schools.

Although it is not expected the additions will be completed by September, shift classes will be abolished as soon as possible, he said.

Chairman of the board, Mrs. Frances Thompson, said local trustees are "pleased with the speed with which the department" granted their request of last week.

effect exonerated the department for difficulties which may be encountered next year, at the same time urging the architects to get a move on.

The buildings and grounds committee has selected John di Castri architect for the two-room addition to Burnside; Wade, Stockill and Armour for the two rooms each for Frank Hobbs and View Royal, and R. W. Siddall Associates for Strawberry Vale (two rooms) and Victoria West (four rooms).

In the meantime, the board has called for tenders for the addition of six classrooms to Monterey Elementary, approved by the department Thursday.

Plans for a four-room expansion of Cloverdale Elementary also have been approved. These will be contained in a separate primary unit to be erected to the rear of the main building, it was announced.

Ask The Times

Q. In Ask the Times you said Prime Minister Pearson's middle name was Bowles. Is this so, why is he referred to as Mike? H. R. S.

A. During the First World War, Mr. Pearson's commanding officer said Lester was no name for a fighter pilot so he nicknamed him Mike.

Earlybirds Waiting in Line for Annual Garden Tour

By MARGE GILROY

Heavy rainfall Wednesday night dampened gardens but failed to dampen spirits for the Spring Garden Festival which started at 1 this afternoon.

Mrs. E. McCabe found a lineup of enthusiastic gardeners waiting for her when she arrived at festival headquarters, C & C Taxi, 906 Government Street, at 9 this morning.

Among the early customers were sisters, Jessie and Jean Macdonald, who came from Kamloops Wednesday night and are staying for the three-day festival.

Miss Jean Macdonald said: "I have always wanted to come and see the gardens from the inside and not just from the street."

Other visitors were Miss E. Roy and Miss H. Roy, day trippers from Vancouver who have always enjoyed Victoria's flowers but are joining the festival tour for the first time this year.

From the mainland, four busloads with members from three garden clubs took part in today's tour and on Saturday two more garden clubs are expected to join the crowd.

As for the gardens, gusts of wind up to 50 mph early this morning did little more than scatter a carpet of cherry blossoms across the lawns.

This morning Mrs. Anson Firth reported no noticeable damage although she said, "we got the southeaster right on the nose."

Mrs. Firth considers the festival one of the highlights of the year and looks forward to seeing her garden friends every year.

"We have so many returnees from the United States and they always notice any changes we have made," she said.

Tourists are all garden lovers, who enjoy and respect the efforts that have gone into making gardens a show-piece. Mrs. Firth said the spectators are most considerate and she has never even had to pick up a piece of paper when the show is over.

Other gardens on view today are those of Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Ahler, 1233 Palmer; Mrs. S. L. McMullen, 1800 Tyndall; Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Widdup, 3455 Upper Terrace; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edgell, 3230 Beach Drive, and Mrs. J. G. Worth, 2835 Beach Drive.

Tours will continue Friday and Saturday from 1 to 5 in the afternoon. Buses leave C & C Taxi, 906 Government, at 1 p.m.

Tourists are reminded to wear flat-heeled shoes out of respect for the lawns and for personal comfort.

Tea and rest stops are provided en route. For further information phone EV 5-9004.

FEW APRIL SHOWERS HIT FLOWERS

If your May flowers aren't up to what they should be, you can blame it on a lack of April showers.

Precipitation, all rain, was just 77 per cent of the normal April amount, the Gonzales Weather Office reported today. Total precipitation since the first of the year has slipped to 63 per cent of normal accumulation.

Sunshine, another ingredient needed for May flowers, was well below normal for April. Last month was the fifth cloudiest April in 26 years of Victoria City Weather Office records.

The mercury dipped below freezing twice, 31.3 degrees April 1 and 31.4 degrees April 10.

Easter Seal campaign officials are "not too optimistic" about the success of this year's drive for funds which keeps Bunny Buses operating in Greater Victoria.

Today's total stands at $12,200. Officials were hoping to better the $13,300 raised last year and possibly reach $15,000.

"There are so many drives on now, so I feel we've done very well," said Alan Sutton, chairman of the drive.

He predicted final returns will reach about $12,600.

Members of Segher's CYO will participate in sports at their meeting Friday at 9 p.m. in St. Patrick's School gym, 2368 Trent Street.

SECOND TOWN HIT BY N.W.T. FLOODS

Two-Man Assault Succeeds

KATMANDU, Nepal. (Reuters)—Two American climbers conquered 29,028-foot Mount Everest Wednesday in the first United States attempt to scale the world's highest mountain.

A message received today at the Everest Expedition base camp and radioed to the outside world said two members of the expedition had reached the summit of Everest, but their names were not yet known.

No details of the climb were available in the first radio flash to Katmandu of the American triumph.

The assault on the Himalayan peak was made by a team that left a camp 1,200 feet below the summit.

The announcement that the mountain had been conquered came after two days of radio silence between the base camp and the assault team.

It was the earliest time of the year that the Himalayan peak had ever been conquered.

Everest was first scaled by New Zealander Sir Edmund Hillary and Sherpa porter Tenzing Norgay May 29, 1953.

The 18-man expedition to Everest was led by veteran mountaineer Norman G. Dyrenfurth of Santa Monica, Calif., and financed by the U.S. National Geographic Society.

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

18 Years' Work Gone in Minute

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—"I just got on my feet—then I lose the whole thing."

This is the tragedy of the Hay River flood in the words of town laborer John Bouvier.

One minute he had a modest home, a garage, a collection of tools, a 16-foot fishing boat and two outboard motors. The next minute they were gone in a sweep of angry flood waters.

Bouvier, 44, his wife and four children — the youngest is 22 months — escaped with only the clothes on their backs.

"We just had time to get out of bed, dress the kids and get out of the door—then there was water all over the place," he said.

"We had no blankets, nothing."

Bouvier, who had no savings, is still somewhat stunned with disbelief at what he estimates a $2,800 loss.

"It's not my fault," he said. "What am I going to do? Start out all over again?"

The story is often repeated in the greatest disaster to hit this community on the south shore of Great Slave Lake.

"All we have is what we're standing in," said S. H. (Slim) Bodveron, father of six who are to be evacuated with their mother to Fort Smith, 100 miles southeast of here.

"I don't think there is anything left—the house is absolutely demolished," said the 47-year-old carpenter and part-time fisherman.

When awakened by police early Tuesday, the Bodverons, who live near the Hay River's east channel, didn't realize the seriousness of the threat, he said. But after a leisurely

'Copters Ready To Rescue 750

FORT SIMPSON, N.W.T. (CP)—A flood crest moving down the Liard River was expected to hit this island community at the junction of the Liard and Mackenzie tonight and five helicopters were being rushed into the area in an effort to evacuate the 750 residents. Three-quarters of the island was already under water.

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—Plans for mass evacuation by air were put into operation today as two island communities in the Northwest Territories battled raging flood waters.

An urgent plea was made for helicopters to evacuate all 750 residents of Fort Simpson, forced out of their homes by water backing up from an ice jam on the Mackenzie River, 700 miles northwest of Edmonton. Evacuation of women and children was expected to be completed tonight.

The water started to pour into the community at noon Wednesday and was still rising this morning when most of Fort Simpson was flooded.

Five planes airlifted 222 persons from Hay River town Wednesday and another 100 or so were to be flown out today.

400 IN SCHOOL

More than 400 persons huddled in a school on high ground in Hay River as the flood showed no certain signs of abating.

RCAF and army authorities said helicopters would reach Fort Simpson about noon MST to airlift residents to a federal government airport on the mainland a mile away.

The helicopters were to be sent from Hay River, 250 miles southeast of Fort Simpson. Hay River is 482 air miles north of Edmonton.

The Fort Simpson flood was caused by an ice jam 10 miles downstream. RCMP asked the air force to check the possibility of bombing the ice.

Flying out of Hay River, a community of 1,800 at the mouth of the Hay River on Great Slave Lake, was halted Wednesday by darkness.

Today's airlift was stalled because of difficulty in getting two ferry helicopters started in the cold morning air. The temperature was 10 degrees above zero under the sunny sky.

There was no precise measurement of the river level. Wednesday afternoon the water receded temporarily. Late Wednesday it again began to rise.

No injuries were reported but one evacuee said on arrival at Fort Smith, 100 miles southeast, that many of those lodged in the school were becoming panicky and many children were sick. Early arrivals at Yellowknife, 117 miles north, were described as quiet and sad.

Mayor W. R. McBryen said no serious sickness had been reported but some may have become ill owing to a combina-

Cruisers Seen Near Sunk Ship

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese Broadcasting Corporation said today its reporters saw two unidentified warships when they flew over the area where the crew of a Communist Chinese freighter claimed it was torpedoed Wednesday.

The Japanese Maritime Safety Board commented that neither Japan nor the United States had any warships in the area at that time.

The 9,482-ton Yue Jin sank off South Korea, reporting it was attacked by an unidentified vessel in the East China Sea.

The Japanese Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) showed pictures on a television newscast of two warships steaming in open waters. It identified the two vessels as the ones spotted by its reporters in a flight over the area.

NHK said the two warships were steaming in a circle about half a mile from the spot where the freighter sank. The warships appeared to be cruisers. It added, and one of them bore the number 205.

In Hong Kong, the Communist Chinese language newspaper New Evening Post suggested "trouble-makers, possibly Americans," sank the Yue Jin on its way to a Japanese port.

Japanese officials could not confirm the crew's claim that it was hit by three torpedoes and suggested, because all the crew members survived, that the vessel might have run aground or hit a Korean war mine which minesweeping teams failed to clean up.

Ex-Minister Protests Firings

OTTAWA (CP)—Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister, cabled Prime Minister Pearson in London today to protest "the absolutely ruthless" replacement of veterans affairs department employees.

Mr. Churchill, also a former veterans affairs minister, asked for immediate reinstatement on the Canadian Pension Commission of Ken MacKay, formerly of Drayton Valley, Alta., and Winnipeg, and a "cessation of this abuse of ministerial authority."

At the same time, he sent a telegram to Prime Minister Minister Roger Teillet describing Mr. MacKay's release as "a disgraceful act" and stating that this "deprived First World War veterans and the province of Alberta of a representative on the pension commission."

NO EXTENSION

In an interview, Mr. Churchill said Mr. MacKay was appointed to the pension commission May 1, 1962, by Conservative cabinet order for a one-year term. He said Mr. MacKay was notified last Friday there would be no extension of his term.

In his telegram to Mr. Teillet, Mr. Churchill said "the practice has been to continue the non-permanent appointees to the War Veterans Allowance Board and to the Pension Commission on a year-to-year renewal basis until a permanent position opens or until retirement at age 70 or after 10 years' service."

T. D. Anderson, commission chairman, told a reporter that Mr. MacKay's work had been "entirely satisfactory." Mr. Anderson confirmed Mr. Churchill's statement that the practice on temporary appointments had been to continue them on a year-to-year basis or until retirement at age 70.

Plane Lost With Four Men Aboard

SEATTLE (AP)—Search began today for a light plane missing on a flight from Portland to Renton with four Seattle-area men aboard.

The state aeronautics commission said more than a dozen planes took to the air and others planned to join the hunt during the day. The civil air patrol set up headquarters at Kelso to assist in search operations.

Hellyer Flies to RCAF German Base

ZWEIBRUCKEN (UPI)—Canadian Defence Minister Paul Hellyer flew into this Royal Canadian Air Force base today to study RCAF and NATO force operations in West Germany.

Hellyer, who flies on to inspect the 4th Allied Tactical Air Force at Ramstein Friday, arrived from London aboard an RCAF Yukon Transport.

Howard Hughes Loses Round to TWA

NEW YORK (UPI)—Millionaire industrialist Howard Hughes today lost a round in his protracted battle with Trans World Airlines which is suing its biggest stockholder for $145 million in damages under the anti-trust laws.

Federal Judge Charles M. Metzner ruled that Hughes and his interests were in "wilful default" in the complex court action and said he would enter a formal default judgment in favor of TWA Friday.

WILSON MEETS PEARSON

Mac Blamed For Trade Slip

LONDON (UPI)—British Labor Leader Harold Wilson, who could be the country's prime minister within a year, today promised Canadian Prime Minister Pearson that a Labor government would go all out to bolster Commonwealth trade.

Wilson, the opinion poll favorite to oust Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the next British election, outlined his strong views on Commonwealth trade to Pearson during a 50-minute chat in the new Canadian leader's plush hotel suite.

The two men, old acquaintances from their previous days in government, also talked in formally over orange juice about the general international situation and Western defence problems.

The pipe-smoking Wilson made it clear after the meeting, however, that Commonwealth trade dominated the discussions.

"I feel that Commonwealth trade has been allowed to become run down," the Socialist leader told newsmen. "In my view, there was no reason for this."

"I do not accept, as the British government seems to, that an historic downward trend in Commonwealth trade is inevitable."

Wilson blamed the situation, along with Britain's chronic trade imbalance with Canada, on British government policy and the failure of some British exporters to take advantage of opportunities. He accused the

INDIANS HUDDLED IN CANOES

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—A band of 160 Indian men, women and children huddled together in canoes Wednesday night when the flood-swollen Hay River inundated their camp area here.

Many of the group had inadequate clothing to face a biting 25-mile-an-hour wind and freezing temperatures. Their warmth was gained by huddling together.

William Presloski, Fort Smith Indian Agency superintendent, obtained rations in Hay River Wednesday night and had them dropped by helicopter to the group just before dark.

They survived the night without incident.

GOVERNMENT-BUILT CAUSEWAY BLAMED FOR ANNUAL FLOOD

Ice Wall in Hay River Stops for Nothing

By LESLIE MILLIN
"When that ice comes down the river, it doesn't stop for anything. It just keeps coming, and the noise is like thunder."

Two Victorians, former residents of Hay River, N.W.T., were trying to describe the awesome sight of spring breakup on one of Canada's northland rivers—and the even more awesome sight of the river in flood.

"It's quite a thing to see a wall of ice going over and over," says Mrs. Marjorie Townsend, 3375 Maplewood, a resident of the Hay River area since 1949.

"And it's quite a situation to have 2,000 people stranded on an island. It happens regularly every spring."

Floods like the one isolating Hay River at present are not common—the last bad one was in 1951—but there is moderate flooding every spring, and every spring the residents of Hay River watch the banks anxiously and wonder when the government will do something for them.

For 11 years, says Sean-ich fur farmer William Hopper, Imperial Oil agent in Hay River for seven years, the federal government has filled in a causeway through the west channel of the Hay River to allow the Mackenzie Highway through to the delta town.

For 11 years, the denizens of Hay River have watched

RAGING FIRE SWEEPS ACROSS ALASKA TOWN

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A raging fire was reported sweeping unchecked today through the downtown section of the fishing community of Cordova, about 150 miles southwest of here.

Last word before communications were knocked out said at least six buildings had been destroyed.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Bob Britt, age 9, of Springfield, Ore., for his question:

How do bees make honey?

The warm spring weather coaxes out the young leaves and the earliest blossoms from the winter twigs. And right away, the honeybee gets busy. Chances are, this is her first day's work, but she knows exactly what to do. She is outdoors shopping for the groceries to make food for the other bees of the hive—and the most important food will be a supply of rich, sweet, golden-goosy honey.

The honeybee and her sisters scout around for blossoms of all kinds. When she finds a good supply, the honeybee returns to the hive and dances in sign language to tell her sisters about it. Soon after, another and another and another bee zooms out and buzzes straight to the flowers. Each little bee lands on a blossom, uncovers her long tongue and dips it deep into the throat of the flower.

She is sucking up sweet, liquid nectar and will go from

Bees Produce Tons of Honey

Honey is a mixture of rich sugars, and almost everybody is very fond of the sweet-tasting stuff. The experts tell us that it is a valuable food rich in enzymes, minerals and vitamins. It is easy to digest, and its sweet sugars give a quick supply of energy. Once in a great while we find a nourishing food which is delicious to taste—and the honey made by the busy honeybee is the very best of these good foods.

The busy bee hives of the United States produce about 125,000 tons of honey every year, and we buy still more honey from foreign countries. Some goes to market right in the waxy combs, but most honey is strained and purified.

Macmillan administration of "sacrificing" Commonwealth trade in favor of closer ties with continental Europe.

Pearson declined to go into details, but said he had "a good talk" with Wilson. Pearson opened his official talks with Macmillan over lunch at Admiralty House following a brief introduction to the British cabinet. The two leaders were to hold more working sessions later in the day and Friday.

Inserted in the Canadian leader's itinerary for the day was a meeting with NATO Secretary-General Dirk Stikker who flew here from Paris after Pearson agreed to see him in preparation for the NATO ministerial conference in Ottawa later this month.

ICE WALL

Continued from Page 1, the "fill" back up flood waters until the weight of the river could no longer be restrained, and highway and causeway were together swept down into Great Slave Lake.

"The federal government is responsible for the situation as it exists there," says Mr. Hopper bitterly. "They never built a bridge as they should have."

"We fought for that bridge, and all we got were excuses and no money. "That fill" was holding back at least six feet of water. The bridge should have been completed 10 years ago.

"They've never done anything about flood control. I don't think they believe in Hay River. They say in 10 years it'll just be a ghost town."

Besides being a fishing centre, Hay River is the communications nerve centre of the Great Slave Lake area; says Mr. Hopper, and has a magnificent natural harbor.

Mr. Hopper is now a milk farmer on the East Saanich Road, but still holds several pieces of property in Hay River.

He is convinced that Hay River will live with the threat of flood and isolation every year until the mud and logs on which the Mackenzie Highway crosses to the delta town are replaced by a bridge, and he doesn't think this will happen until a Northwest Territories commissioner lives in the north, not in Ottawa.

Until that happens, residents of Hay River will listen for the thunder of the ice breakup, inspect the banks nervously and wait.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—One of the great news stories of 1935 was the courtroom battle for custody of "little Gloria Vanderbilt," then 10... who sided against her mother, Gloria Jr., one of the first members of "the International Set." Some $4 million was involved... Gloria Jr. lost... and for years they were hostile. Eventually Gloria Jr. announced "My mother must go to work"...

But family struggles end happily, sometimes... Last week "little Gloria," now 38, gave a large party at her Grace Sq. town house for her mother, who now is almost blind, and her mother's twin sister, Thelma Furness, Gloria Sr. gaped for the celebrities' hands. But the end wasn't entirely happy. Everybody understood that Gloria Jr.'s marriage to director Sidney Lumet is flimsy and speculated about the presence of actor-writer Wyatt Cooper, her latest escort... and the next book in the saga.

Bushy-haired comedian Marty Allen, who has his hair teased for comic effect, was at a theatre with his wife Frenchy, when a man sitting behind tapped him on the shoulder and said, "Madam, would you please remove your hat?"

Princess Grace switches from a Fifth Avenue hotel to the new Regency (with a name like that, naturally!) when the Rainiers come here May 13 for a fawnitt. They were at Greenbrier this past weekend, the Prince and some Philly lads then were off to catch the American Darby. Grace, denying she's heirspeckling again, said, "I'd be delighted to have another baby but I'm not. However, I have gained a little weight!"

Bob Blosser the Boston comic with the Jack Benny voice who used it to get on the Perry Como show (calling Jack and said "This is the other Jack Benny." Jack's writers auditioned "him and Jack signed him for a May visit and an autumn appearance.

Bernice Massi of "No Strings" gave boy friend Timmy Everett monogrammed hubcaps (to be used as ashtrays)... Some men'll whip out pictures of their kids—Danny Kaye shows photos of his airplane... Ex-boxer Jake LaMotta, hoping to peddle his bio to H'wood, would be satisfied with Vince Edwards in the lead... Carlo Ponti landed film rights to "Dr. Zhivago"...

Paris papers say Kim Novak'll take an apartment there near couturier Louis Perreud's apartment... There'll be Keely Smith beauty salons in H'wood and Las Vegas.

Robert Horton, who'll star in the Rodgers-Lerner musical "Daisy," will pilot, his own plane to summer stock jobs till then... Ex-financier Eddie Gilbert's Manhattan town house is on the market, for a mere $650,000...

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The Broadwayite's idea of a real outdoor man is a guy who'd rather watch a movie in a drive-in theatre than on TV.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: If you take your wife to dinner the tax department won't let you put it on the expense account. Meaning, says Jackie Kannon, you can't deduct for entertaining the boss.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "About the time we think we can make ends meet, somebody moves the ends."

—Herbert Hoover.

EARL'S PEARLS: Any parent can tell you—all you have to do to make a child hungry is take him to an expensive restaurant.

That's earl, brother.
